HOLIDAY FACES

Quinnie, Katrina, Elise and Kristina, some of the members of The Clubhouse Kids, spent last Wednesday in the basement of the Sunset Center baking chocolate chip and sugar cookies to serve to the community at the Carmel Tree Lighting ceremony tomorrow.

A WETLAND IS BORN

■ Caltrans develops one-acre lake south of Carmel River as 'mitigation' for controversial Hatton Canyon Freeway

By KENDALL KLYM

DURING THE past few weeks, Carmel resident Judith Barlow has noticed an addition to the landscape at the west end of the Odello West artichoke field — heavy equipment digging a giant ditch.

"I thought they we're just making more fields for artichokes," Barlow said, noting that the ditch has gradually filled with water to form a lake. "Today I noticed a large body of water and wondered why that was done."

The project — an effort headed by Caltrans to create wetlands to make up for those that will be destroyed by various road and bridge projects — is literally laying the groundwork for the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway, according to Caltrans officials in San Luis Obispo.

In doing so, state transportation department is again the subject of controversy.

The one-acre lake and 43 acres surrounding it have been approved by California State Parks, which owns the land, to serve as a mitigation "bank" to mitigate the destruction of wetlands in Hatton Canyon, said Gregg Albright, regional landscape architect for Caltrans.

The freeway could roll through a 2.8-mile section of Hatton Canyon, a designated wetland surrounded by willow trees east of Highway 1 and north of Carmel Valley Road.

Caltrans undaunted

Although the freeway project has been blocked by many hurdles, including a lawsuit by the City of Carmel and the Hatton Canyon Coalition, Caltrans has opted to plow ahead with the "mitigation bank."

"This 'banking' concept of going out and mitigating property in advance of negative impacts is becoming more and more popular," Albright said. "Since we cannot avoid negatively impacting nine acres of wetlands in Hatton Canyon, we will create new wetlands and new riparian habitat at more than an acre-per-acre ratio."

The bank, located on state-park land, will serve as both seasonal and permanent wetlands surrounded by approximately 37,000 native plants, to be planted and maintained

Touch-up construction slated for newly repaved upper Ocean Avenue

By KENDALL KLYM

CARMEL RESIDENTS can expect more inconvenience this winter on Ocean Avenue between Carpenter and Junipero, as the recently completed paving project undergoes bump removal.

A little more than two weeks after upper Ocean was reopened, the newly laid corrugated concrete surface, designed to improve traction during wet weather, has been slated for smoothening.

Jim Cullem, Carmel's public works director, said the alterations, to be completed by Granite Construction Company, are minor and under warranty.

The worst of the bumps are located along a 60-foot section near the intersection of Ocean and Torres, he said. A total of 10 areas, about 10 feet by feet 10 wide, will be fixed to meet state road requirements.

"We will be monitoring the appearance of the road," Cullem said, noting that the process of grinding down the bumps might alter the appearance of the reddish-gray hue of the surface. "We have been very sensitive to the aesthetics of the project. If we're not satisfied, Granite may have to replace portions of the pavement."

Cullem noted that the city was aware of the bumpy surface before the road was reopened but decided to go ahead with the dedication ceremony anyway.

He also said the city has withheld payment for the project until the job is completed and to the satisfaction of city officials.

Outraged Carmelites

Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Livingston, who made a pitch for asphalt instead of concrete before the project was approved, said she has received a number of calls from angry and cynical residents who want to know why the road is so bumpy.

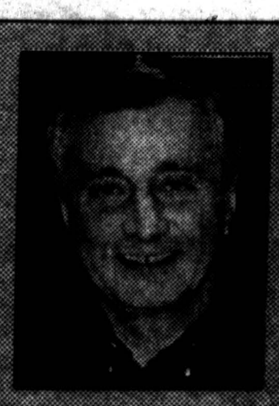
This party of 30 knew how to 'Thai' one on

Joe Fitzpatrick



It's not every day that a restaurant owner gets a spontaneous call for a party of 30, but Csaba Ajan [left] knew just what to do when it happened to him.

IT IS noon on Thanksgiving Day. Porta Bella restaurant on Ocean in Carmel is already packed with diners with reservations.

The phone rings and a female voice with an unfamiliar accent asks managing partner Csaba Ajan if he can accommodate a party of 30 for turkey dinner right away.

"MAY I ask what sort of group it is?" inquires Csaba.

"It is the crown princess of Thailand and her entourage," replied the voice on the other end.

THANKSCHING fan (his computer-like mind multiplying 30 times the $24.75 per person Thanksgiving dinner price — ka-ching!), Csaba heard himself say, "Yes, come right over."

But where would he put them? Porta Bella was chock-full up to its giblets. Then a light bulb turned on over his head.

AS Crown Princess Soamsawalli and her mother and their entourage of ladies-in-waiting, interpreters, Secret Service men and bodyguards filed in, Csaba led them up the inside stairway to Porta Bella's sister restaurant next door, Cafe Americana!

The latter at that hour was only half-full of holiday diners, and with some rearranging of tables, it was able to seat the entire group of 30 very nicely.

THE PRINCESS obviously carries a ton of clout in her country, for when any member of the party approached her or passed in front of her, he or she was careful to bow deeply or curtsy elaborately in respect.

In fact, one waiter swears that he even saw the turkey on her plate bowing! (It had to be a Tom turkey, see — because if it were a Susan turkey, it would have been curtsying.)

WHEN she finished her meal, the princess wrote boldly on the butcher paper (which covers the tablecloth on each table), "I love this restaurant!" and signed it.

One of her ladies-in-waiting paid the entire tab (around $600, which was less than it would have been at Porta Bella) with an American Express card.

Dynamic drama teacher debuts at Tularcitos Elementary School

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

WHEN STEPHANIE Waldrip was introduced at the school board meeting last month, she burst into song.

Waldrip was asked to give the Carmel Unified School District board members a taste of what she does at Tularcitos Elementary School; she began teaching a drama program at the school this year after a drama teacher topped the wish list of the Tularcitos Parent Club members.

"I apologize," said Waldrip, abruptly breaking off her rendition of "Getting to Know You."

"I don't know what got into me," she said. "This happens a lot and the children look at me and think, 'What's gotten into her?'"

After building a career as a professional actress, singer and acting coach, Waldrip is clearly excited about the debut of her latest role — drama "consultant" for children.

"This is all very exciting for me," she told the board and audeince assembled in the Tularcitos Elementary School library. "It's been a most unbelievable experience to watch the little children grow and watch them develop self-esteem."

In her new position — which she juggles with acting in theatrical productions around the Peninsula — Waldrip organizes a "major musical extravaganza" every four weeks at the school.

Each grade-level has an opportunity to put on a performance during the school year. Waldrip is currently working with the 86 tots in the kindergarten class to perform "The Mitten" on Dec. 17.

She said being an acting coach is a gratifying role.

"It's a humbling experience to work with people and see them grow and to know that in some small way you were part of that," she said in an interview last week. "And to see these little ones who have never acted before come in so frightened and a little wary and to watch them go away from it just glowing ..."

After years of coaching adults, she finds working with children refreshing.

"Children don't have the emotional barriers," she said. "They want so badly to express themselves. I think that adults do, too, but most are told somewhere along the line, 'You can't do it, you don't have a good voice, this is frivolous, this is stupid' — they all have these blocks, where children don't have any at that young age."

Waldrip said, for the children, the actual night of the performance is not as important as the training that goes into it.

"Whether they go on to become an actress or singer is not important," said Waldrig. "What's important is that they learn to express themselves and learn the basic skills of communication through the dramatic arts. That's the most important thing. Those skills will take them anywhere in this world, through any situation and give them the confidence they need in any profession they choose."

CMS to hold holiday show

CARMEL MIDDLE School will hold its Holiday Show & Sale on the front lawn of the campus from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

The event will include crafts, food and entertainment, with all proceeds to benefit CMS classrooms.

The school is located off Carmel Valley Road. The event has rescheduled from Nov. 16

Takeover at Tuck Box; Plodding FCC is alive!

AS Csaba was bidding them all goodbye out front, and bowing deeply, himself, a few times in the process, an all-too-efficient busboy stripped the butcher paper (with the princess's message) off the table inside and crammed it into the garbage!

(Swell, kid. There's efficiency, and then there's efficiency.)

OTHER than that, though, it was one exciting Thanksgiving at Cafe Americana, which does not attract many crown princesses with 29-member entourages on most weeknights.

TODAY'S QUOTE . . . Marion Burros (in The N.Y. Times):

"The definition of eternity — one turkey and two people."

BY THE WAY, as reported here three weeks ago, the Tuck Box restaurant on Dolores near Seventh in Carmel has indeed been sold and the identity of the secretive new owner can now be revealed. (Wow!)

He is Zigmont J. Le Towt — sometimes known as "Jody" — who also owns Le Bistro on San Carlos near Ocean.

SELLER of the Tuck Box was Aleen Hillbun, who had owned it with her late husband, Harvey, since 1976.

The restaurant is expected to reopen in about two weeks. But that's not official.

I BELIEVE I FEEL A PULSE . . . The FCC lives!

Just when we had given up the Federal Communications Commission for dead, it suddenly croaked out a ruling on those LMAs (local marketing agreements) people here have been wondering about since last spring.

IT was last spring when Ackerley Communications (owner of KCBA) took over KCCN under an LMA with Harron Broadcasting (KCCN's owner).

FCC rules prohibit one owner from owning two television stations in the same market, but LMAs have been in a gray area, for, technically, Ackerley doesn't "own" KCCN, but merely runs it for Harron.

At least, that's the story.

NOW, though, the inchmeal FCC, revved up to glacial speed, has ruled that all LMAs entered into before November of this year will be grandfathered in as legal under new LMA regulations being prepared by it.

This completely exonerates Ackerley and Harron of any wrongdoing, right?

HOLD your horses, Kemosabe, for the FCC threw in a caveat that seems to raise the possibility the KCCN deal could be blown right out of the water! It says in essence:

That it (the FCC) reserves the right to invalidate LMAs "in circumstances that raise particular competition and diversity concerns, such as those that might be present in very small markets." (Like, perhaps, Monterey-Salinas-Santa Cruz.)

BUT it hasn't ruled anything specifically on the KCCN case.

Mark Faylor, general manager for Ackerley of both KCBA and KCCN, said he hadn't read the order, but that Ackerley had "done everything according to the book" in the KCCN situation.

Pebble Beach's Jim McGillen, who, with his wife, Cindy, and Clint Eastwood, had submitted an unsuccessful bid to buy the station from Harron early this year, said this week:

"We believe implicitly that the Ackerley-Harron LMA will be overturned. The only question is when the FCC will officially do it."

AND so it goes. Eventually, the FCC may say something SPECIFICALLY about KCCN.

But that may be right after the Israelis have gone to bed with the Arabs, the IRA with the English and the

Setting the record straight

In last week's front page article, "Eastwood stirs controversy in bid to 'transfer' Odello water," The Pine Cone mistakenly reported that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors had approved Clint Eastwood's permit to acquire additional water rights on the Odello East artichoke fields.

In fact, on Nov. 25, the Monterey County Planning Commission approved the permit. The board of supervisors will consider the item on Dec. 17.

One egging and a visit from Richard Nixon

HERE'S A look at the more significant items of activity logged by the Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Saturday, Nov. 23, through Friday, Nov. 29.

"Carmel" entries do not include calls from within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea, which is under the jurisdiction of the Carmel Police Department.

SATURDAY, NOV. 23

Carmel: No suspects were found after a woman reported that she heard footsteps and a man coughing at the rear of her residence.

SUNDAY, NOV. 24

Carmel: A woman reported that between 10 and 11 p.m. someone threw three eggs at her vehicle parked in front of her residence.

MONDAY, NOV. 25

Pebble Beach: A woman reported that some of her shrubbery and exterior night lights had been kicked over and damaged to the tune of $500.

Pebble Beach: A man reported that, after being awakened by his barking dog, he observed a man hiding behind a tree in his front yard. An area check failed to locate any suspects.

Pebble Beach: Pebble Beach Security reported discovering numerous vandalized mail boxes.

TUESDAY, NOV. 26

Carmel Valley: A golf course superintendent reported the theft of a television, VCR and video camera from a meeting room at a golf club.

Carmel: A man reported that he felt that his wife, whom he hadn't seen in two days, was being persuaded by her friends to avoid returning home. When contacted, his wife stated that ongoing domestic problems were the reason for her absence.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27

Carmel: A woman reported that a chair had been taken from her living room sometime within the past month. She believes that a former tenant might be the culprit.

Carmel Valley: A juvenile male was transported back to a Salinas boarding house after his parents reported that he was out of control.

THURSDAY, NOV. 28

Pebble Beach: A man reported that an unidentified neighbor visited his property in order to complain about construction work being done on the premises on a holiday. When asked for his name, the neighbor replied, "Richard Nixon."

Carmel: Two vehicles were reported vandalized.

Carmel: A woman reported that her husband was in violation of a child custody order after he did not return their son on the appointed date.

FRIDAY, NOV. 29

Carmel: A woman reported that she had been assaulted by her sister during a family gathering at their parents' residence the previous day.

Carmel: A man reported being pushed by a 15-year-old theater employee after the man asked for his money back. The juvenile assailant agreed to apologize to the man.

Big Sur: Deputies responding to a report of a man yelling and banging on the doors

Traveling jewelry salesmen a popular target for thieves

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

AFTER REPORTS that a loosely organized group of thieves has been targeting traveling jewelry salesmen throughout California, Carmel police are spreading the word that the thieves have been spotted in town.

In fact, Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras recently averted a potential jewelry theft when a salesman visiting Carmel reported he was being followed.

Poitras confirmed the man was being tailed by a group of people, and the detective was able to bring two of the men into the police station for questioning.

Although the men had not committed a crime, they agreed to fingerprinting. As a result, it was discovered they had lengthy criminal records.

"In this instance, the salesman did exactly the right thing," Poitras wrote in a memo to Carmel jewelers. "He didn't wait, he didn't rationalize, he played his hunch and called the police. There is no doubt that a serious crime was prevented as a result."

Lucky so far

The most recent theft of this nature was in June when a traveling jewelry salesman visiting Carmel had his car broken into and more than $250,000 worth of merchandise stolen.

But for the most part, Carmel has been fortunate.

"There have been no less than three incidents where we have actually grabbed people probably intending to steal from merchants," said Poitras.

The detective said those developments have contributed significantly to fewer crimes of this nature in the city.

And Poitras wants to keep it that way.

He said the thieves will usually tail the salesmen for four to five days, waiting for the opportunity to steal from them. Poitras said in the process of tailing, the thieves may follow the salespeople to Carmel since there are so many jewelry stores here.

"I can't prove it, but there is also the strong probability that they are coming to Carmel and waiting here to find or spot a salesman to hit," said Poitras.

Poitras is encouraging residents and Carmel merchants to stop these types of thefts.

"What we need is the eyes and ears of the community to prevent something like this from happening," said Poitras. "The police can't be everywhere at once, but there are plenty of business people who might notice something suspicious."

Carmel detective warns of crime rise during holiday season

CARMEL POLICE Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras is warning area merchants that the risk of theft increases around Christmas time because there are more customers going in and out of stores in town.

One crime wave local police fear could be just beginning involves thieves who linger in stores until they have the opportunity to slip into a back room and steal money out of employees' purses.

One such incident happened two weeks ago.

"Unless they are caught with their hand in a purse, they can just say they were looking for the bathroom," said Poitras.

Preservation of El Sur Ranch is for looking — not touching

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

ALTHOUGH BEAUTY is subjective, one of the most breathtaking portions of the massive El Sur Ranch in Big Sur must be the acreage just south of the Point Sur Lighthouse.

This particular span of land is picture perfect — a plush green landscape dotted with grazing cattle set against a backdrop of deep-blue ocean.

On Tuesday, Monterey County agreed to spend $11.5 million to purchase the development rights of the 3,550-acre ranch, which stretches for nearly five miles along Highway 1, from the Little Sur River to the north to the Big Sur River to the south, where it is bordered by Andrew Molera State Park property.

Purchase of the development rights for the El Sur Ranch property marks the largest and final expenditure of Prop. 70 funds. The land, owned by Pebble Beach resident James Hill, offers one of the most scenic, unspoiled views of the ocean along the Central Coast.

The beautiful El Sur Ranch in Big Sur.

Although seven acres of Point Sur Lighthouse property and 15 acres of U.S. Navy property are encompassed in this span, this acreage is not owned by Hill and therefore not included in the deal with the county.

And although the county is purchasing the development rights of the El Sur Ranch, it will remain private property with Hill retaining the right to graze his cattle.

"It won't change the public access to El Sur Ranch," said Brain Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust, which worked with the Hill and the county to negotiate the purchase of the development rights. "We are buying the preservation of the property — not public access.

WATER SOLUTIONS:
Where Do We Go From Here?

1 In public forums this summer, we asked Monterey Peninsula residents how we should solve the community's water problems. At our request, National Demographics interviewed 16,000 Peninsula residents by phone. Here's what we found out:
- Residents do not want development and growth
- Residents want a secure water supply
- Residents want to avoid drought water restrictions and conditions

2 The State has ordered the replacement of 10,730 acre-feet of water a year from the Carmel River aquifer. That represents two-thirds of the annual water usage by Peninsula residents. Based on the State's order, and the opinions and desires of Monterey Peninsula residents, California-American Water Company (Cal-Am) is initiating a program to assure:
- Restoration of the Carmel River—the fish, the riverbanks, and the habitat in general
- Further promotion of water conservation through continued education
- A new pricing system, effective January 1997, to reward those who use less water

3 A vital centerpiece of this program is a No-Growth Dam to provide water to meet existing water needs only. The No-Growth Dam will replace the 10,730 acre-feet of water, revive the Carmel River, restore the riparian habitat and provide security against drought. Cal-Am will support the community in enforcing a No-Growth dam and will require, as a condition of its application to the California Public Utilities Commission, the State Water Resources Control Board and the Army Corps of Engineers, that the Dam will not be used for new growth. The Dam will be:
- Privately financed and constructed by Cal-Am
- Capable of holding 24,000 acre-feet of water
- Located approximately 2,400 feet down stream of the existing Los Padres Dam
- A 282-foot high roller compacted concrete dam measuring about 1,600 feet along its crest

Preservation now depends on development credits

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

VIEWED AS A major victory for land preservationists, the recent purchase of the development rights for El Sur Ranch in Big Sur, depletes Proposition 70 funding and throws the preservation ball onto the Big Sur community's lap.

According to Fifth District Supervisor Sam Karas, the county has done what it can; now it's up to the residents and land owners to save the remaining stretches of coastal land from development.

Under Prop. 70, a state bond measure approved by voters in 1988, the county has spent $25 million to purchase the development rights to 25 properties along the Big Sur coast, but Karas estimates 40 parcels remain in the critical viewshed area that could be developed.

Now that the money is gone and no other funding source is on the horizon, one tool remains which could prevent development of these parcels: the Transfer of Development Credits (TDC) program.

The program acts more like a carrot than a stick by awarding land owners who give up their development rights with credits to develop outside the line of scenic views.

Brian Steen, executive director of the Big Sur Land Trust believes the TDC program is a good idea, but a complex process.

"It amounts to a compensation mechanism for people with viewshed properties," said Steen. "I think it's a good system. The county ends up owning nothing, it just administers the transfer of credits."

Steen also believes it is up to the Big Sur community to prevent the development of the remaining "viewshed" lands.

"The county has spent $25 million to set aside critical viewshed parcels," said Steen. "The remaining ones should be absorbed within the community. It won't be easy, but it can be done."

Bud Carney, supervisor for the coastal program at the Monterey County Planning and Building Inspection Department, also supports the program.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for Big Sur to protect the critical viewshed because we are out of Prop. 70 money now and can no longer buy property, so this is an option," he said.

How it works

For a property to be eligible for the TDC program, it must be designated by the county as a "donor" site — a buildable parcel located in the Big Sur critical viewshed.

For instance, property located on a rocky unbuildable cliff would not qualify, but buildable land located right on the ocean and visible from Highway 1 would.

By sacrificing the development rights on an eligible parcel, the property owner is awarded two development credits.

The property owner can use the development credits on other property he owns outside of the critical viewshed area or he can sell the credits.

According to Carney, development credits can only be used within the Big Sur Land Use area.

The value of the development credits is what they can be negotiated for on the open marketplace, said Carney.

And credits are valuable because they allow the subdivision of a property that normally could not be subdivided.

For example, explained Carney, a 40-acre parcel in Big Sur that is not in the critical viewshed and is zoned "watershed" and "scenic conservation" normally allows for one single-family unit.

But if the county approves the property as a "receiver" site, and it meets normal development standards, such as water and sewer standards, the property owner could use two development credits to build three units instead of one.

"That's why it has value," said Carney. "It has value to the receiver, and that value can be negotiated between the owner of (the credits) and the person who has a potential receiver site."

Karas will report on the TDC program at the Big Sur Multi-agency Advisory Council meeting at 10 a.m., Friday, Dec. 13, in the Big Sur Lodge Conference Center in Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park on Highway 1 in Big Sur.

City offers three-hour parking through the holidays

By KENDALL KLYM

FOR A second year in a row, Carmel is offering holiday shoppers a break from the city's standard 90-minute parking regulations.

The city has extended limits throughout Carmel to three hours to accommodate Peninsula shoppers who might otherwise refrain from shopping in town because of parking limitations and traffic, said Debbie Alexander, executive director of the Carmel Business Association.

"We just hope that employees and business owners will not park in those districts," Alexander said. "For next year, the city might say, 'Never mind,' if employers and business owners keep parking there."

The three-hour zones will be in effect until Jan. 15, 1997.

We need your help to help others less fortunate this holiday season!

The Carmel Pine Cone invites you to drop off your donations at our office, 4th Ave. between Mission & San Carlos Streets, Suite #6.

Water board considers policy to block release of drought water

By PAUL WOLF

THE WATER board is considering adopting a policy that would forbid the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) from distributing drought savings for growth purposes.

When the board meets Thursday, Dec. 12, it will consider a policy, introduced by Director Jim Hughes, designed to prevent the board from giving into temptation — that is, passing out drought or conservation water as the cities cry out for new water.

Chairwoman Darlene Burkleo said the policy is sensible.

"Until we get a new water source, we mustn't allocate water that really isn't there," she said.

Attending a water conference in San Diego all week, Hughes was not available for comment.

The board meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Monterey City Council Chambers at the Monterey Civic Center complex off Pacific Street.

The temptation of dipping into drought reserve accounts may be greater now that the board has decided against distributing the 150 acre-feet of recycled water made available from the two-year-old Pebble Beach Reclamation Project.

Earlier this year, directors agreed to release the water to the eight MPWMD jurisdictions — six cities, Monterey County and the Monterey Peninsula Airport District.

Last month, however, the board, responding in part to the expense of pending litigation, changed its mind about releasing the water.

Interim solution

The 150 acre-feet was intended to serve as the Peninsula's interim water supply until bigger projects — such as a dam or a desalination facility— were developed.

"I had said the 150 acre-feet would be the last possible water we could allocate, and I meant it," Burkleo said. "So now it is going to be sink or swim on the water that we have."

The chairwoman, however, did not rule out the possibility of the board's considering the release of, say, 50 acre-feet of recycled water — to be distributed only for

Gender gap in retirement savings

By James P. Calandra, CPA

TRUE OR FALSE: Women need to save more for their retirement than men do.

The answer is "true." Even though the rules governing Social Security and private retirement benefits are officially gender-neutral, generally women statistically accrue lower benefits than men. Thus, women generally need to have a larger pool of retirement savings.

■ Why do women receive lower retirement benefits? Social Security and many other pension benefits are tied to a worker's earnings, and full-time working women earn on average only 73 percent of their male counterparts. In addition, women are more likely both to work part-time and to leave the work force entirely to raise children, further diminishing the accrual of private pension and Social Security benefits — the first two "legs" of a secure retirement.

■ Can women rely on their husbands' retirement savings? Women who rely on their husbands for economic security would appear to be in relatively good shape financially. In the event a husband dies, private pension plans are generally required to provide benefits for the surviving spouse, and the same rule applies to Social Security. In the event of a divorce, the court may award the wife a portion of the husband's pension benefit. Social Security benefits also will be paid to a divorced wife, based on the husband's earnings, if the marriage lasted at least 10 years. But it's also a sad fact that about 25 percent of elderly, single women live in poverty, compared to 5 percent of elderly women who are married. It appears that divorce and the death of a husband do take a financial toll.

It only makes sense for a woman to build her own individual savings, the strong "third leg" of a secure retirement. Every woman should realize that the man in her life may not be willing or able to provide her with lifelong economic security.

❑ Tax changes and long-term care

If you buy long-term care insurance, you should be aware of some important tax changes. Beginning in 1997, you can include some or all of the premiums you pay for long-term care insurance as unreimbursed medical expenses when you itemize deductions. And, as with a regular health insurance policy, most amounts you are reimbursed for long-term care expenses will be free of tax.

However, before you run out to buy long-term care insurance, there are some things to keep in mind. First, for a policy to qualify for tax deductions, it must meet strict federal rules on when you are eligible for benefits.

These federal rules are tougher than the rules that some states have set. The states may change their rules to match the federal guidelines, but until they do, you should make sure that the policy you are buying qualifies for favorable federal tax treatment. Second, remember that the premiums will only be deductible to the extent that the total of all your unreimbursed medical expenses, including the premiums, exceeds 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. Third, depending on your age, only a portion of the premiums may be deductible.

The new tax rules also affect chronically ill people who receive advance death benefits from their life insurance policies to finance their care.

In recent years, many terminally or chronically ill patients have either sold their life insurance policies to third parties or have received advance benefits under a special rider on their policy.

Proceeds of many such "viatical" settlements will be free of tax starting in 1997. To qualify, a patient must meet strict federal definitions of "chronic" or "terminal" illness, and there's a cap on the annual amount that can be received tax-free.

"regional benefit" projects, such as the planned expansion of the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

A limited distribution could meet pressing community needs but avoid significant public opposition.

The three key drought and conservation reserves that Hughes' policy strives to protect are:

■ The drought portion (358 acre-feet annually) of the four-year-old Paralta Well, located in Seaside.

■ The "conservation" portion (270 acre-feet) of the reclamation project, which is a three-way undertaking involving the MPWMD, the Pebble Beach Community Services District and the Carmel Area Wastewater District.

■ Some 1,800 acre-feet of conservation savings that have added up since the district's water conservation program began in 1987.

Residents of county may visit Aquarium for free

Offer extended to locals for next two weekends

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

NOW THAT the swarm of tourists have abated and the block-long lines in front of the Monterey Bay Aquarium have disappeared, residents of Monterey County will have the opportunity to visit the aquarium for free.

As a way to celebrate the 12th anniversary of the aquarium and thank locals for putting up with the crowds and extra traffic, the aquarium has offered two weekends in December where residents gain free admission to the wonders of the sea.

By presenting valid identification and proof of residence, residents may visit the aquarium this weekend and the weekend of Dec. 14-15 for free.

Perfect time

Ken Peterson, spokesman for the aquarium said it is a perfect time for residents to visit because they will have a less hectic environment in which to view the exhibits and will not be fighting the crowds.

"We have traditionally provided a weekend of free admission, usually around our anniversary in October," said Peterson. "It's our way of thanking the community for its support throughout the year and thanking them for bearing with any extra traffic. It's also an opportunity for residents who maybe haven't had the opportunity to visit the aquarium for financial reasons."

Outer Bay

It is also an opportunity for residents to see the new Outer Bay gallery tank, home to tuna, sharks, sea turtle and giant ocean sunfish, which opened in March.

Residents can also visit the "Deadly Beauties" exhibit which closes Jan. 2. This exhibit features poisonous sea life from coral reefs around the world, including sea snakes, stonefish, upside-down jellies and bearded ghouls.

RIO ROAD CANDIES AND GIFTS

Here's news good enough to eat: RIO ROAD CANDIES is having a Holiday Open House this Friday, Dec. 6, from 6pm to 8pm! We're invited to preview all the wonderful Christmas candies and gifts while we dip into Mindy's many samples and enjoy her hot cider and cookies! The piece de resistance: every bit of Christmas, from gift boxes of chocolate truffles to "reindeer" corn candy will be marked - for those two hours only - 25% off! Quite a selection, too - large chocolate Santas and Nutcrackers, boxes of marzipan (perfect for stockings!), chocolate lillipops, candy canes, gingerbread houses, and countersful more! Bring the family. Enjoy! 206 Crossroads,

From warm, handsome mohair plaids by Bleyle to Lily's of Beverly Hills' cruise line cottons. And everything in between, of course. I'm speaking of TOWN OR TRAVEL where you'll see in a minute that your needs or your gift needs are right here. For the golfer - the perfect fitting twill pants in soft yellow, soft pink or white; for snow country, any number of David Brooks' 3/4 length zip-front fleece jackets; for any day, any place, Bleyle's classic merino wool turtlenecks, and for aboard ship, Sea Waves' bathing suits and dress-length cover-ups! See what I mean? The Mall on San Carlos, betwn. 5th/6th, Carmel. 626-0276.

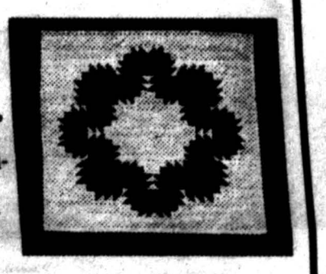
HARRIET DUNCAN

It's here in the nick of time - the absolutely perfect sweater for dressy occasions. In luscious angora, this fully lined knitted sweater from Misook makes a simple statement of simple elegance. In white, black, oatmeal, red and silver, find it at the HARRIET DUNCAN shop. Also, see the Marisa Christina ivory vest with ribbon trim from the Christmas '96 collection, and the matching wool pants, jackets and skirts in ivory, sand, pink or blue by Ancora. An appropriate reminder - Gift Certificates! Note: the pre-Christmas sale of selected fall merchandise starts Dec. 10, with everything in the collection marked 40% off! 6th between Lincoln/Dolores, Carmel. 624-4912.

Get one task out of the way simply and quickly by calling Joe at the MONTE VISTA MARKET to discuss your Christmas dinner. Will you choose an aged prime rib roast, trimmed of excess fat, boned, rolled, tied, and cut to your liking? Or a Ladino turkey, smoked boneless ham, leg of lamb, goose or duck? Just leave your order, pick it up when you wish and be assured of a perfect Christmas dinner entree. Surely you know about his Party Trays - meats, cheeses, veggies, dips, potato salads and pasta? Or the Gourmet Gift Baskets? Give him a call at 372-2075 now and be well ahead of the game! 15 Soledad, Monterey.

Chatterbaux Children's Shoppe

First of all, save Dec. 21 from 2 to 3pm and arrive at CHATTERBAUX Children's Shoppe for a party with Kerry A. Hartjen, professional clown, magician and this day, Father Christmas. He'll be twisting holiday balloon creations, telling stories and brightening the season! Ginny wants you to know she's expanding into Jr. sizes in formal wear only - tuxedos, tea dresses, etc., and that she now has the Country Cottage (so like a Carmel cottage!) by Little Tykes. A quote from a favorite poem of Ginny's: "All that we love, deeply becomes a part of us." Thanks, she goes on to say, for all your love this year! 157 Fountain, PG. 647-8701.



A beaver in a Christmas tree forest has already nibbled one tree down, according to a delightful quilt wall-hanging at MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS. That classic, this one pictured and many others for wall, crib, couch & bed are made by Joan's mother, and would make perfect gifts. And so would Joan's Christmas aprons, or the set of lovely walnut knitting needles or any of her many kits of baby outfits, etc. Do not miss her adorable knitted Christmas tree ornaments - tiny bears wearing knitted sweaters hanging by their ears, for one! Cheerful, whimsical gifts here! 529 Central, PG. 647-9276.

Prim & Proper

Take notice of this good news: the night of Dec. 10, during the Victorian Christmas Walk in Pacific Grove, PRIM & PROPER will be open from 5 to 8pm at which time you'll receive 10% off every purchase you make! Your gifts will be wrapped without charge, and you'll have a good Christmasy time! Among the separates, dresses and accessories, be sure to see the Eagle Eye, Belle Pointe and Susan Bristol handknit Christmas sweaters! They're colorful and fun to have year after year. As are the Foxcroft blouses with Christmas motif and Gotcha Covered Christmas vests, matching skirts and blouses. 553 Lighthouse, PG. 372-5563.

Haruko's

If there's a Cuddledud in your lingerie drawer, you've found the secret to being comfortably warm even in a flimsy blouse! This solar-knit fabric provides all the warmth you need without any weight. It's soft pima cotton on the inside; finely spun, non-cling, non-static nylon on the outside giving a smooth fit. V-neck top comes sleeveless, short sleeves or long sleeves; pants are short or long. You'll wonder how you lived without them! Making room for many boxes of new merchandise, HARUKO'S FASHIONS' clearance sale is in full swing. Many items are reduced, some drastically. Better drop by. The Crossroads, next to Caffe & Co., Carmel. 625-1060.

COLLECTORS GALLERY is proud to present the latest of Malcolm Moran's whimsical sculptures of playful children with balloons and kites, etc. These bronze and jade sculptures are revered and sought after by the serious and occasional collector worldwide, and the famous such as Ethel Kennedy, Senator John Glenn and Clint Eastwood. Mr. Moran was invited to appear at the White House for a one-man show during the Ford administration which was quite an honor! His swings, dogs, cats and children are little gems - approximately 8" - 12" - and are wonderfully priced from $125. Su Vecino Ct. on Dolores, btwn 5th & 6th, Carmel. 622-0776 catherine's

Just as you'd expect to find different and interesting pieces of jewelry at CATHERINE'S, you will find them. Earrings, so wonderfully different, are made of peridoux, garnet and fresh water pearls. Some with jade, garnet and pearls, some with onyx, pearls and garnet. They're exquisite, and Christmas is coming! Be sure to have Cathie show you the pins and earrings by Ayala Bar - limited editions of intricate filigree and gems - highly unusual! Must mention the silk chiffon I saw - skirt (handkerchief hemline), top and scarf in "night " colors that seem to float! Other chiffon in ivory. by Caltrans. Albright predicts the project will be completed by next fall.

"We're using the latest technique and the latest research to create a valuable wildlife habitat," Albright said. "Some areas will be wetter and some drier. There will be different levels of ground with different vegetation types on them."

Many Peninsula residents consider the project, in the making since 1991, a "double-edged sword." They claim the water in the newly formed lake prevents flooding of Mission Fields homes but at the same time provides an avenue for the development of a freeway that would destroy what they consider irreplaceable wetlands in Hatton Canyon.

Joyce Stevens, a longtime activist with the Hatton Canyon Coalition, a local organization created to combat the freeway, said coalition members were both pleased and upset with the mitigation project.

"The coalition and the city and everybody were happy with Phase I of the project — the removal of 750 feet of a levee and the building of a road at the wastewater treatment plant (just southwest of the Carmel River Bridge)," Stevens said. "The overall idea of restoring wetlands is a tremendous thing. But when you turn it around and use it as a wedge for an environmentally detrimental issue such as the Hatton Canyon Freeway, it is kind of a paradox."

> 'Since we cannot avoid negatively impacting nine acres of wetlands in Hatton Canyon, we will create new wetlands and new riparian habitat at more than an acre per acre ratio.'
> — Gregg Albright
> Caltrans architect

Speaking as a Carmel resident, Stevens protested Phase II of the project — the use of parkland for mitigation purposes.

She said Caltrans' use of the land to make up for wetlands slated for destruction was especially "unethical" because the mitigation site was originally purchased from the Odello family by Carmel residents and the City of Carmel to preserve the land as Carmel Mayor Ken White agrees with Stevens' argument, claiming that the proposed freeway and related projects contradict the city's general plan.

"We don't like the whole idea," White said. "We don't feel that it's a reasonable solution to destroying wetlands in Hatton Canyon."

However, White did say that the city approves of Caltrans' flood-control measures accomplished by removing the levee.

"Our argument is not with Mission Fields residents; we are extremely happy they are getting solutions to their flooding problems," he said. "Our argument is with Caltrans, which is using this as a subterfuge for solving Hatton Canyon problems."

Larry Levine, flood-control chairman of the Mission Fields Neighborhood Association, approves both phases of the mitigation project, which he says is not necessarily connected with the freeway project.

"Our environmental perspective (of the mitigation project) is very positive," Levine said, noting that the removal of the levee and the construction of the wetlands will protect his neighborhood from flooding.

"The neighborhood association has not taken a position on the Hatton Canyon Freeway, which we see as a separate issue and something that doesn't require stopping the flood-control project," Levine observed.

Ken Gray, mitigation project manager for California State Parks in Monterey, agrees with Levine that the project will only benefit residents, including area wildlife.

"We're going to physically increase the size of the Carmel River Lagoon so that there is more area for fish to survive in," Gray said, noting that state parks and a host of other government bodies have signed off on the project. "The only negative impacts to the area are going to be the loss of trees on the levees where the (excavation) work is being done."

On the positive side, he said, the permanent wetlands would serve as prime habitat for the steelhead trout, which may be placed on the endangered species list in the near future.

"Steelhead preservation is one of the motivations for increasing open-water habitat," Gray said.

> Carmel mayor

He said his agency's cooperation with Caltrans does not reflect any stance on the Hatton Canyon Freeway project.

While the wetlands project will be on hold during the winter due to weather conditions, area residents want more details about its environmental impacts.

Bryant Pearson, a University of Oregon environmental studies student who came home to Carmel for Thanksgiving, decided to make the mitigation project the subject

Rain or Shine!

Once again, the Peninsula will enjoy the opportunity of sharing the camaraderie, holiday spirit and talents of the many fine local craftspeople and artist will be sharing their latest creations at the 16th Annual Artists Christmas Faire. The Faire will be held Saturday, December 7th and Sunday, December 8th from 10 am to 5 pm each day.

This year's festivities will be located in the old pharmacy building next to Safeway at the Mid Valley Shopping Center, 6 miles east of Highway One on Carmel Valley Road.

Originally starting out as a Pottery Faire, it has grown to where this year's visitor will find not only pottery, but those special one-of-a-kind gifts of paintings, glass art, photography, jewelry, wrought iron, custom birdhouses, calligraphy, wearable art, toys and furniture art.

If you enjoy owning and giving the best – handcrafted unique and original, this is the one holiday art faire you don't want to miss. For additional information, call 659-0570.

Today: Red Cross blood drive in Carmel

A BLOOD drive, jointly sponsored by the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, will be held from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. today.

The blood drive takes place at American Legion Hall, Eighth and Dolores, Carmel.

A complimentary lunch will be served to those who donate blood. City of Carmel employees are given extra time for lunch if they opt to donate.

All the blood donated today stays in the community, said Sandy Campbell, blood chairman for the Carmel chapter.

More information: 624-6921.

Today: Kiwanis Club in giving spirit

THE KIWANIS Club of Carmel-by-the-Sea will hold a holiday luncheon at 12:30 p.m. today at the General Store, located on Junipero and Fifth in Carmel. Tickets are $10.

At approximately 12:30 p.m., some 15 Peninsula charities will be the beneficiaries of $5,100 in Kiwanis Club dontions.

More information: 624-0092.

Saturday: Walking tour set in Carmel

CARMEL HERITAGE, a preservation organization, will offer a historic walking tour of downtown Carmel beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Welcome Center, located at Lincoln and Sixth. A $5 donation is suggested.

More information: 624-4447.

Carmel Fire Dept. embarks on toy drive

BEGINNING TOMORROW and continuing through Dec. 24, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Department will conduct a drive to collect food and toys for needy families on the Peninsula this Christmas.

The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the department on Sixth Avenue between San Carlos and Mission, daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. More information: 624-1718.

Salvation Army hunts for bell ringers

THE SALVATION Army is currently looking for volunteers to staff its red kettles and ring bells this holiday season.

Donations dropped into the famous kettles go directly to provide emergency shelter, clothing and counseling for needy people on the Peninsula.

Toilet retrofit-rebate program gets OK

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) Board of Driectors approved the first reading of Ordinance No. 85, which defines the rules and standards for the toilet retrofit-rebate program approved earlier this fall.

The voluntary, first-come-first-served program for residential housing features $164,000 for rebates of up to $100 each, or an estimated replacement of 1,640 toilets.

The program, which will begin in mid-January 1997, is expected to generate a savings of 40 to 65 acre-feet. It is geared toward property owners who are not required to retrofit toilets to comply with existing MPMWD ordinances, such as the need to retrofit when a home is sold.

Sutton earns Lupe Alonzo scholarship

MONTEREY COLLEGE of Law student Susan Kathleen Sutton was recently awarded the first annual Lupe M. Alonzo '95 Memorial Scholarship.

Sutton submitted the winning essay in a writing competition answering the question, "What are the three most important character traits of a good lawyer?" Her answer stressed the qualities of compassion, generosity and courage.

The scholarship was created in memory of Alonzo, who died in June of encephalitis. Alonzo graduated from Monterey College of Law in 1995, and was a first-time passer of the July 1995 bar exam. He was an associate with the Monterey law firm of Bohnen, Rosenthal & Dusenbury at the time of his death.

Cañada Woods plan slated for board of supervisors Dec. 17

By KENDALL KLYM

CLINT EASTWOOD'S proposed Cañada Woods North development will be the subject of a Monterey County Board of Supervisors hearing set for 2 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 17, at the Salinas Courthouse.

A section of the Monterra Ranch development, Cañada Woods encompasses a 1,060-acre swath of hills, located south of Highway 68 between Olmstead and York roads on the southernmost section of the ranch. The proposed subdivision would include 34 residential parcels, eight recreation/open space parcels, two employee housing parcels, a golf course and an equestrian center.

Approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission Nov. 25, the proposal has survived the scrutiny of environmentalists and residents who have concerns about the subdivision's impact on water and other resources.

Brian Foucht, the Monterey County Planning Department planner in charge of the project, said the department recognized negative impacts to the native coastal prairie, but considered water issues "not to be significant."

"We adopted a statement of conditions recognizing the impacts to coastal terrace prairie, but feel that the (original) development of the Monterra Ranch subdivision (139 units) would have far more impacts on that than this," Foucht said. "We've tried to respond to issues that are being raised by the public through our planning commission hearings. My reaction so far is that we've done our best to provide answers to questions like water and biological resource issues."

Time an issue

Another issue that has vexed the project's opponents is the short amount of time between hearings.

Foucht gave no reason for the less-than-a-month turnaround between planning commission and board of supervisors meetings.

"We were not cutting any time short," he said. "We've just watched time very carefully."

In response to accusations that Eastwood received preferential treatment because of his celebrity status, the actor-director told The Pine Cone he has followed all the rules "just like everybody else."

"Nothing is on the fast track," Eastwood said. "With the Cañada Woods project, we've gone out of our way" to adhere to procedural requirements.

If approved, the project would reduce the density of lots on Monterra Ranch by eliminating 78 lots, Foucht said.

As 19 lots would remain on the property, only 15 more would be brought forward for development, he said.

UNCHAIN THOSE DOGS!

It is a sad sight for those who love animals - dogs who spend their lives on the end of a chain or rope. This is no life for an animal whose nature is to be a companion, who enjoys being with people or other dogs. This is also an unhealthy life: chained dogs cannot run or exercise and they are often left this way without suitable shelter to protect them from the elements. It is no wonder a chained dog barks and cries, it is crying out for attention.

The SPCA of Monterey County suggests these alternatives: if yours is an outside dog, give your pet a fenced enclosure to run around in. Make sure your outside dog has a waterproof shelter and access to food and water. Finally, a lonely dog can be destructive when bored, so give your pet something to occupy its time, such as toys and balls. Even a simple tennis ball or towel tied in knots can provide hours of enjoyment for your pet.

of a class report.

Having obtained a California State Parks report approving the project, despite notations of soil disruptions, Pearson questions the environmental benefits of the constructed wetlands.

"This looks like an example of human meddling," Pearson said. "Wetlands are naturally forming phenomena. They can't be man-made."

According to the parks report, the dumping of soil excavated for the lake would make the environment "unsuitable for riparian forest vegetation."

Pearson said a "responsible" environmentalist would use the area for "phytoremediation" — introducing plants that absorb toxins, such as those generated by the wastewater treatment plant — not for reconstructing wetlands.

Stevens is also concerned about the environmental impacts of the mitigation project, which she believes should focus on Hatton Canyon, not the lagoon. She said the destruction of the canyon may interfere with the survival of the red-legged frog — a newly or soon-to-be listed endangered species.

Police, parents join heads to improve youth conduct

BY KRISTI BELCAMINO

LAW ENFORCEMENT officials told Carmel parents last month that information and communication were keys to keeping teens out of trouble.

During the forum, "Parents, Youth and the Law: Building a Partnership," officers said they have adopted a community-oriented policing philosophy which listens more to citizens, but also asks more of them.

The event, sponsored by Community Against Substance Abuse, was held at the Carmel Youth Center.

The following four experts shared their experiences with youth and the law:

In recent years, officers have stepped up their enforcement of juvenile crime by adopting a "no-tolerance" policy toward minors using alcohol or drugs, said Lt. Bill Freeman of the Monterey County Sheriff's Department.

In the past, he said, officers would dump out alcohol found at teen parties to make a statement, but now they automatically cite the teen and make them deal with the juvenile court system.

This policy is a direct response to community desires.

"Parents, schools and taxpayers told us they want a no-tolerance policy," he said.

"In the last few years, we have embarked on a community-oriented policing philosophy," agreed Sgt. John Calzada, also of the sheriff's department. "That means we are more attuned to what the public wants us to do."

"In the past when people had a problem, they gave it to the cops thinking we had all the solutions," said Calzada.

But he said they can't do it alone.

"All of law enforcement is going to this philosophy," he said. "We can't solve all the problems of society; we just can't do it. We need community involvement."

Sgt. Dan Clark from the Carmel Police Department said the police need the parents to support law enforcement action.

He said police will be "firm, but fair" with teens.

"We will treat your children the same way we want to be treated," he said.

Clark said in any situation in which a crime has been committed, police will bring the youth into the police department and call the parents.

"But what we've found works really well, is to make them call you," he said.

He gave an example of a teen acting tough and swearing, who cried when he had to call home and tell his parents where he was.

Clark said it is important for parents to back up the police, rather than undermine their efforts.

"Some parents walk into the station and tell their child, 'Shut up, you don't have to tell the police anything,'" he said.

Clark gave parents some basic rules to keep themselves and their children safe.

■ Get to know the parents of your children's friends. Know their phone numbers and addresses.

■ Keep communication open between the parents of your children's friends. Don't be afraid to call and confirm your child is staying the night at someone's home.

■ Don't lead one type of life and expect your children to lead a different one. (Set a good example.)

■ Be supportive of both law enforcement officials and your children.

"We care about your kids," said Clark. "We have kids, too."

Dennis LaBarbera, Monterey County Deputy District Attorney, introduced himself to the audience as the one who prosecutes the teens who get arrested by the officers.

Although, he has worked with juveniles in the past, he currently prosecutes all criminal cases for those 18 and over.

"A lot of awful things happen to kids 18 to 21, too," he said. "Don't let your guard down when your kids turn 18. Just because your kid turns 18, you don't have to turn it off."

Parents can still help their teens avoid the consequences of criminal acts.

He stressed that for underage drinking and driving there is no margin of error.

"When you're under 21, any amount (of alcohol in the blood) is a violation.

"If kids think, 'I'm not even under the influence' and are driving, it's not OK," he said. "Give them the information you have so they can exercise their own judgment better than they do."

Marilee Caress, director of special projects at Carmel Unified School District, said that, for some kids, school is where they come face-to-face with the law for the first time.

"There is a tendency for them to say, 'You're not the law,'" said Caress, "but the school has a responsibility to provide a safe, drug-, alcohol- and tobacco-free learning environment that is conducive to success."

Caress gave examples of rules the school enforces, saying these rules are "obviously more restrictive" than laws outside of school.

A student can be suspended or expelled for a number of violations, including possessing a firearm or tobacco, committing an act of theft or vandalism, being obscene, profane or vulgar or being willfully defiant, she said.

Willful defiance, explained Caress, could mean that when the teacher tells a student in class to go sit down and the student refuses, that teacher could suspend right then.

She said everyone from the classroom teacher to the superintendent has the authority to suspend a student, but expulsions are heard before the school board.

Caress said the school has authority over the students from the minute they walk out the door to come to school, to the moment they return.

Dona Seymour-Smith, manager of Lamplighters Inn, located on Ocean and Camino Real, said she is extremely disappointed in the project, which has caused the inn revenue losses during construction last month.

"I know this is something we all have to live with when the roads are repaired," Seymour-Smith said. "But there is no need for us to go through that noise going both ways."

Seymour-Smith said she believes a high-traction surface is only necessary on the downhill side.

Road closure possible

Although Granite Construction will keep the corrugated surface on both sides of the road, Cullem said, the noise level and bumpy ride will be lessened with the alterations.

Victor Davi, project manager for Granite, said the process may or may not produce significant inconveniences for residents and travelers.

"At the very least, there will be a bit of noise," Davi said. "At the most, the road will be shut down for a two-week period."

Cullem said the work will not start until after the holidays.

Carmel's tree lighting slated for Friday

CARMEL-BY-the-Sea will welcome the holiday season with a tree-lighting ceremony from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday at Devendorf Park on Ocean and Junipero.

The event begins with children's games in the park (including a cookie decorating contest). Santa arrives via one of Carmel's fire engines at approximately 4:30 p.m. Community carolers will meet at Carmel City Hall, Monte Verde south of Ocean, at 4:30 p.m. and will stroll up Ocean to Devendorf Park singing favorite songs.

The tree-lighting ceremony starts at 5 p.m., and will include performances by the Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School choral groups and the Carmel High School Band led by Dick Robins.

Awards for the commercial district holiday decorations will be also be announced. Mayor Ken White will conclude the festivities by lighting the tree. Hot cider and cookies will be served by the Carmel Red Cross from 4 p.m. More information: 624-2522.

and windows of a residence found the suspect passed out in a vehicle belonging to the owners of the residence. The man was arrested.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that a house fire erupted after he left fireplace ashes unattended on his wooden front deck. The Carmel Valley Fire Department extinguished the flames.

Big Sur: Deputies, responding to a report regarding a possible suicidal individual who called 911 from a pay phone at a lodge, found that the 55-year-old woman in question did not meet the criteria for a mental observation hold. She was eventually driven home by her daughter.

Big Sur: Tools and sleeping bags were reportedly stolen out of a truck.

Carmel: A man who was stranded on an outcropping of rocks at Carmel Point was assisted to shore by rescue divers.

Carmel: A gas station owner reported receiving numerous complaints about a man who parks his bus near the station.

The Monterey County 'Sheriff's Log' appears weekly in The Pine Cone.

Forest & Beach is third advisory body to back Sunset Center remodel

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE CARMEL Forest and Beach Commission has joined two other advisory bodies in supporting the $17.9 million "BOO/A mitigated" plan for renovating the Sunset Center Theater complex.

The commission's vote Tuesday, Nov. 26, followed similar actions taken by the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission and the Carmel Historic Preservation Committee.

The Carmel City Council will choose a preferred alternative early next year.

On Wednesday afternoon, after Pine Cone deadline, the Carmel Planning Commission was slated to vote on whether also to support the BOOR/A mitigated plan, named for the Oregon-based architectural firm that designed most of its features, or back one of the other five alternatives.

The cost estimates for the different projects vary greatly — ranging from $5 million to provide structural improvements to the existing facility to roughly $26.6 million to build a second theater on the property.

The BOOR/A mitigated concept would include a new theater with improved acoustics, rigging, stage and support facilities, as well as a new (probably underground) parking facility.

The Forest and Beach Commission approved the plan with recommendations for landscaping and planting "upper canopy" pine trees at the project site. In addition, the commission included in its action a request that the city council retain a landscape architect for the final design of the project.

As it stands, the BOOR/A mitigated plan is the forerunner among the renovation alternatives, as it has not only the support of three commissions, but that of a committee of Carmel's professional staff, including Planning Director Brian Roseth.

City starts search for 'unsung heroes'

THE CITY of Carmel by-the-Sea is looking to acknowledge its heroes.

"Not just any kind of hero," said Carmel Councilwoman Barbara Livingston, who heads the search committee for Carmel's Unsung Hero annual award, "but those who have given their time and their energy to make Carmel a better place in which to live."

To qualify, Unsung Heroes must be members of the community who've never been recognized before for their acts of kindness and charity.In the past, Unsung Heroes have contributed to the safety and well-being of Carmel by delivering mail and books to shut-ins, by collecting trash at the beach, by providing aid and comfort during the flood, by providing homemade cookies for community events, by volunteering at city functions, and once by volunteering at the Harrison Memorial Library after being laid off by the library.

Nomination forms are available at Carmel City Hall, the library, or the police and fire departments. All nominations must arrive at city hall before Dec. 31.

Nominees will be judged by the Unsung Heroes Committee, and final awards will be presented by Mayor Ken White during the February city council meeting.

For more information, or to request an application by mail, call 626-1610 or 624-2781.

CHS basks in accomplishments of cross country squads at state

By TREVOR FOGG
Pine Cone Sports Correspondent

HISTORY WAS made by the Carmel High School cross country teams as both the boys' and girls' full squads competed last weekend in the Division V state championships at Fresno's Woodward Park.

Never before had both CHS teams emerged from the Central Coast Section meet to qualify for the event pitting California's top prep harriers.

With sophomore Jody Shevelson leading the way — he completed the 3.1-mile course in 18:38, good for 84th place — the Carmel High boys finished 12th out of 15 teams. McFarland High won the competition, while Ryan Downey of St. Margaret turned in the top boys' time with a 15:55 clocking.

Closely on Shevelson's heels were Carey Parker (18:52, 92nd), Tim Pfeiffer (18:52, 93rd), John Pfeiffer (18:59, 97th), Lindley Zerbe (19:00, 99th), Jon Jonssen (19:19, 104th) and Jeremy Woodward (20:05, 116th).

Allen guides girls

The Carmel girls, running with nary a senior, were paced by the sterling effort of junior captain Molly Allen, who completed the course in 21:14, good for 40th place in the 130-runner field. The winner's time was 19:06.

Vanessa Auburn turned in a time of 22:16 for 71st place for CHS. Other CHS finishers: Kate Churchill (23:59, 103rd), Brook Jones (24:37, 107th), Natalie Johnson (25:41, 114th) and Fallon Hookailo (26:48, 122nd).

As for the two teams' outlook next season? It's very bright. Many of the boys, and all of the girls, will be returning under the guidance of CHS head coach John Ables.

Erin Miller paces RLS to 8th-place finish at state meet

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

ERIN MILLER of Robert Louis Stevenson turned in an impressive 21st-place finish at last Saturday's Division V state high school cross country championships at Woodward Park in Fresno.

Miller, a senior, completed the 3.1-mile course in 20:26, 1:20 behind the top finisher, Kat Saxton of College Prep.

The RLS girls' team, which qualified for the state championships after capturing the Central Coast Section crown two weeks ago, finished eighth overall.

Other key RLS performers were sophomore Jessica Morris (22:15, 69th), junior Stephanie Stuart (22:17, 72nd), sophomore Zena Herman (22:55, 86th), junior Mizuri Fujii (23:22, 94th), senior Elaina Ross (24:37, 106th) and freshman Kristin Thomas (25:10, 110th).

Carmel High School's Alicia Pearson (42) goes up for two during a victory Tuesday night over non-league opponent Aptos. The 50-43 victory in the CHS gymnasium lifted the Padres' record to 1-1. The team next plays Tuesday at Hollister in another preseason contest.

First-year Padre girls' head coach Dave Stainbrook, a former three-sport star during his CHS days, likes what he sees when he looks at his team's roster. Carmel is able to balance out its overall youthful roster with five seniors, who the coach says provide 'strong leadership' abilities.

Gaudoin, Dougherty, Milligan spearhead solid Padre attack

Pine Cone Sports Correspondent

THE CARMEL High School girls' basketball team will be sporting a fresh look this year. With only two returning starters, just five seniors on the 14-player roster, no Darlene Tulua at center and a new head coach, things obviously will be different.

The new coach is Dave Stainbrook, who has been with the CHS basketball program the past two years. A CHS alumnus and talented three-sport athlete, Stainbrook graduated in 1987 and went on to play quarterback at Fresno State and Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo.

Two years ago, he was Rich Frank's assistant with the boys' varsity squad, and last season headed the freshman boys.

"We've got an outstanding outlook with strong senior leadership," said Stainbrook, who will be assisted by last year's girls' head coach, Allen Lewis. "Our goal is to get back into the (Central Coast Section) playoffs."

Depth a key

For the Padre girls to reestablish themselves as a power in the Mission Trail Athletic League, everyone will need to contribute on a team stacked with depth. When it comes to individuals, Stainbrook hopes to get significant contributions from point guard Michelle Gaudoin, shooting guard Shannon Dougherty and center Marlo Milligan.

Carmel's only weakness this season appears to be height and possibly inexperience. As for strength in the middle, the Padres will have to make up for the loss of Tulua, who for three years was named to the all-MTAL team but graduated last June.

Because four sophomores and five juniors make up more than half of the roster, Stainbrook hopes to compensate for the inexperience factor by keying on his team's quickness.

"We'll try to be more aggressive with a trapping defense and a little more man to man," the coach said.

Split first two games

So far, the girls are one for two in the preseason. Several members of the team were plagued with the flu during a season opening 44-33 loss to San Lorenzo Valley on Nov. 26.

But the Padres bounced back strong Tuesday night with a home victory against Aptos. Milligan led all scorers with

Padre Sports Scene: Boys' soccer team sets sights high — MTAL title

THE CARMEL High School varsity boys' soccer team, which travels to Alvarez on Friday for a meeting with the Eagles, has high hopes for the upcoming season — perhaps, even, a Mission Trail Athletic League title.

The Padres enter tomorrow's matchup with Alvarez at 1-1, having lost to a strong Salinas High squad 1-0 and drubbed Seaside 6-1.

If the Padres entertain hopes of vying for the MTAL crown, they will, among other teams, have to knock defending champion King City off the No. 1 perch. But the team is confident of its abilities.

"This is one of the best soccer teams I have played on at Carmel High, and I think we have a good shot at winning league," said senior standout Patrick Foudy.

The Padres will be led by Brazilian foreign exchange student Geronimo Volpini, who scored four goals in the win over Seaside. Three seniors — Oscar Guerrero, John Pfeifer and Foudy — also will be counted on by Carmel for significant contributions.

The unit was dealt a big blow when starting junior defenseman Ashwin Datt suffered a broken tibia and fibula in the game against Seaside. Datt, a junior, will be lost for the season.

RLS hosts Clovis West in Wilson tourney

By SCOTT A. BROWN

ROBERT LOUIS Stevenson will take on Clovis West in the fourth game of tonight's first round of the fourth annual Coach Wilson Memorial Tournament at the RLS gymnasium.

The Stevenson boys are the defending champions of the three-day tournament, which is played in honor of C.E. Wilson, RLS chaplain from 1958 until his death in December 1992.

Here are today's first-round matchups:

- 3:30 p.m. — Pacific Grove vs. Gilroy.
- 5 p.m. — San Benito vs. California.
- 6:30 p.m. — Palma vs. Seaside.
- 8 p.m. — STEVENSON vs. Clovis West.

"Every team in it has a chance to win it all," said RLS head coach Bill Hankison. "The teams from the Peninsula this year are unusually strong."

Hankison said Palma and Clovis West from the Fresno area may, however, be handicapped by their respective successes in the post-season football playoffs. The two schools play this weekend in title tilts.

If RLS wins its first-round game tonight, it will play the winner of the Palma-Seaside contest at 8 p.m. Friday. An opening night loss would shift the Pirates into Friday's opener at 3:30 p.m.

The tournament's championship game is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are available daily at the door.

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS
Famous U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team Diet
During the non-snow off season the U.S women's Alpine Ski Team members used the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right - 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full" - no starvation - because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home. (For men, too!)
This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today! Tear this out as a reminder.
Send only $8.95 ($9.60 in Calif.) - add .50 cents RUSH service to: American Institute, 630 Quintana Road, Suite #136, Morro Bay, CA 93442. Don't order unless you expect to lose 20 pounds in two weeks
Because that's what the Ski Team diet will do.

Water for people

Dear Editor:

Responding to Julie Poitras' letter of Nov. 21, I don't really believe she understands the ramifications of Cal-Am's proposal to build the New Los Padres Dam.

We didn't get all the facts. Cal-Am states it will construct a "no-growth" dam. Under questioning by me at the last water board meeting, vice president Larry Foy admitted that although there will be no water from the dam for growth, the dam could free up water from other sources, such as the 4,000 acre-foot Seaside Basin.

It's sad that Cal-Am couldn't be up front regarding the entire proposal. Credibility is important in this day and age. People are not stupid anymore. There is no need to build a large dam when a less expensive project would be more acceptable to the majority. A desal plant from 5,000 to 6,000 acre feet would be adequate.

Say that Cal-Am built a 6,000 acre-foot plant. That amount with 4,000 acre-feet from Seaside, and the 6,346 acre-feet Cal-Am has or can have legal rights to would equal 16,346 acre-feet, a couple of thousand acre-feet more than Cal-Am is presently pumping.

This would eliminate Cal-Am's "illegal" pumping from the river. A desal plant would not be on an earthquake fault, would not be subject to rainfall, is not as prone to lawsuits as the dam, and would be operational in three years.

Taking the words by Ms. Poitras, "although dam proponents refuse to acknowledge this reality," the hard fact is that any dam in the Cachagua area is a moot subject, and the sooner dam proponents "get real," the quicker we will have an adequate water supply.

Citizens should urge Cal-Am to abandon this implausible scheme and get on with its responsibility to comply with state law which requires any water purveyor which uses city streets to distribute its water must provide adequate and clean water to its franchise area. Cal-Am's dam will only provide water for fish and the property owners along the river, who receive water free as riparian users. We need water for people.

Lou Haddad, Monterey

Fine public servant

Dear Editor:

With Leon Panetta's resignation as President Clinton's chief of staff, the federal government has lost a fine public servant. There are few government officials or politicians who measure up to Panetta's stature.

As a member of the House of Representatives, not only were his votes and positions thoughtful, but his service to his constituents, regardless of political party, excellent.

One must also assign credit to his wife, Sylvia, for her dedication to Leon and the citizens of his congressional district and the nation.

I hope he decides to run for governor of California — his skills and abilities are what the state needs.

My only regret is that I supported his opponent in the Democratic congressional primary election of 1976.

Why Fort Ord Reuse Authority made right choice in picking Marina Coast Water District

By MALCOLM D. CRAWFORD

MARINA COAST Water District (MCWD) is not a well-known agency to most people in Monterey County.

Because of the recent decision by the Fort Ord Reuse Authority to negotiate with the MCWD to provide water service on the former Fort Ord lands, and published comments by some individuals critical of that decision, it is important that the general public have a balanced view of MCWD and MCWD's proposed service to the Fort Ord lands.

MCWD was formed in the 1960s as a local agency governed by a publicly elected board of directors to provide water and sewer service to the Marina area. The board and staff of MCWD are directly responsible and responsive to the people they serve.

Being on the coast, the Marina area was among the first in Monterey County to be confronted with seawater intrusion. Without easy access to the relatively inexpensive water from the shallower aquifers of the Salinas River Groundwater Basin, MCWD and the Marina community faced the problem proactively by:

- Exploring and developing deep wells;
- Adopting an aggressive water conservation program;
- Investing in wastewater reclamation; and
- Building the first municipal desalination plant in Monterey County.

MCWD is the only water supplier in Monterey County to have implemented all these solutions. MCWD also has an existing water system inter-tie with the Fort Ord system which is capable of carrying a flow of 2,000 gallons per minute.

MCWD is constantly exploring ways to improve service. It was the first local agency to seriously consider contracting out for maintenance and operation of its water and wastewater systems. Considering issues of community control and service, cost and employee impact, MCWD's Board of Directors decided its own employees provided the best service option.

The district staff works hard and is committed to personal and team improvement.

MCWD's local public agency status, its existing facilities and reclaimed water rights — plus its experience with alternative water supplies and wastewater operations — make MCWD the logical choice to serve Fort Ord lands.

As a public agency, MCWD can facilitate a free conveyance of the Fort Ord water and sewer systems to benefit the local area. Anyone who examines all the information requested by and supplied to the FORA selection committee will see that MCWD can provide water service at a cost as low as any published offering by other prospective providers.

Finally, by sharing facilities with Fort Ord, MCWD can provide about $3 million initial savings on capital improvements.

The Marina Coast Water District is prepared to meet the needs of the community by providing cost-effective utility service and promoting the reuse of Fort Ord. The Fort Ord Reuse Authority made the right choice.

Remynse, Anderson, Schumacher honored for CHS grid efforts

By PATRICK FOUDY
Pine Cone Sports Correspondent

JASON REMYNSE, Brandon Schumacher and Golden Anderson were the top honorees at Monday night's football banquet for the 1996 Carmel High School squad.

Remynse, 6-2 and 285 pounds, and Schumacher, 6-2 and 205, were named defensive players of the year. Both are seniors who played in their final prep games on Nov. 14 against Pacific Grove.

Anderson, the Mission Trail Athletic League's leading passer, was named the team's most valuable player on offense. Anderson, too, will be graduating in the spring.

All-league selections

Carmel High was well represented on the all-MTAL teams. Named to the first team were Anderson, Schumacher, Remynse and wide receiver Jacob Saxton.

Wide receiver Robbie Shepner, defensive end Josh Bailey and corner backs / safeties Ryan Travaille and Saxton all earned second-team honors.

Named to the honorable mention squad were tight end Colter Bissell, linebacker Tony Cain, offensive lineman Matt Wall and defensive linemen Roger Ramirez and Joey Macaluso.

"Though our wins and losses didn't come out the way we hoped for, the coaches and I had a great experience," said CHS head coach Mike Kelly. "It was a great group of guys to work with."

The Padres finished 3-4 in the MTAL, including wins over Alisal, Alvarez and Robert Louis Stevenson, and 4-7 overall.

In the loss to SLV, Susan Webb gave everyone a big scare as she blew out her ankle. Fortunately, the Padres will get her back on the court in a couple of weeks.

Next week, the Padres continue pre-season play with a visit to Hollister on Tuesday and by participating in the three-day Breakers Classic at Pacific Grove High, Dec. 12-14.

League play begins Wednesday, Jan. 8, when Gonzales pays a visit to the CHS gym.

Seaside bullies Carmel boys; MHS up next

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

AFTER A DRUBBING by a Monterey Bay League opponent Tuesday night, the Carmel High School boys' varsity basketball team braces for another MBL foe Friday night when the Monterey Toreadores invade the CHS gym.

Friday's non-league game tips off at 7 p.m. The junior varsity contest gets underway at 5:30 p.m.

In Tuesday's game at Seaside High, the Spartans built a 27-16 first-quarter lead and never let Carmel back in the game, ultimately coming away with a 75-53 non-league win.

Seaside, 1-2, took a 45-29 advantage into the intermission and padded the lead by another five points (59-38) heading into the final quarter.

"At this point, we are physically overmatched by teams that are stronger than we are," said first-year CHS head coach Mike Woodie. "Physically, we're just not ready yet. We have to play more aggressively. We're simply giving up too many second shots on the defensive end."

Chris Purdy and Nick Cardinale paced the Padre attack with 14 points apiece, while Ben Cook added 11.

Cook topped the team in rebounds with eight, while Cardinale chipped in with seven.

The Padres took a 0-2 record into Wednesday night's home game with Watsonville, which started after Pine Cone press deadline.

turnout for the 1996-97 season.

First-year head coach Pat Lenz was greeted by 45 players, which is twice as many as suited up a year ago. Eighteen of the players are freshman, and as many as six may play on the varsity team.

The girls are coming off a surprising inaugural season in which they sported an impressive .500 winning percentage.

This year's squad will be led by returning starters Sarah Coombe, Natalie Johnson, Christine Burns and Andrea Talessio.

Carmel jumps right into the regular season as Alvarez High pays a visit at 3:30 p.m. today. Action continues next week with a road game at Gonzales on Tuesday and a home contest with King City on Thursday, Dec. 12.

■ FIELD HOCKEY

Motivation is fueling the Padre girls this season.

"I am pleased everyone worked really well together," said CHS head coach Brenda LaMica, following a 3-1 scrimmage loss to York in the team's first tune-up. "And I am looking forward to the season because the players are really motivated this year."

Part of that motivation comes from a disappointing campaign a year ago.

But it will take the likes of Allison Kistenmacher and Whitney Fisher, who scored the lone Carmel goal against York, to help turn the program's fortunes around.

Santa Catalina and Robert Louis Stevenson likely serve as the league's powers. Other league rivals include York, North Salinas and Monterey.

The girls kick off the league season at 3:30 p.m. Friday when they host York for a rematch. A showdown with Stevenson takes place at CHS on Tuesday.

NFL Legends tournament set for 3 courses next week

FORMER NATIONAL Football League stars such as George Blanda, Hugh McElheny and Ray Nitschke, will be part of the field at the sixth annual NFL Legends Invitational golf tournament, to be played Friday, Dec. 13 through Sunday, Dec. 15 on three Peninsula courses.

Other former NFL stars include Paul Warfield and Bob Svihas as well as former referee Jim Tunney. The tourney will be played on Pebble Beach Golf Links, The Inn at Spanish Bay and Old Del Monte.

Tournament proceeds benefit the Children's Miracle Network of Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital. From previous donations from this event, the hospital's Family Resource Room in the Center for Children and Young Adults has been dedicated to the NFL Legends of Pebble Beach.

DEVELOPERS' SHANGRI-LA? . . . Jill Margaret Brown of Carmel Valley mines an interesting nugget from the Monterey County Elections Department's analysis of the November election hereabouts.

The department said voters turned down Rancho San Carlos (Measure M) by 57 to 43 per cent. By that same margin, they turned down a new Los Padres dam last year.

IN both of those elections, only one area voted in favor of the two developments. Guess who?

Was it Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, Seaside, Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley, Carmel Woods, Carmel Highlands, Big Sur, Del Rey Oaks, Sand City, Marina or Salinas?

HEY, you're good! It was, indeed, Pebble Beach!

Pebble was also the only area of the first nine listed above (the other four weren't eligible to vote) to favor Jeff Davi over winner Dave Potter in the contest for 5th District supervisor.

NOSTALGIA-STARVED READERS FARE WELL

■ "Christmas in Calico, An American Fable," by Jack Curtis; Monterey Publishing, Monterey, CA; 1996. Paperback, 209 pages. $8.95.

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

WHEN GARRISON Keillor's PBS radio programs and best selling books about rural, small town life some 50 years ago around Lake Woebegone brought such enthusiastic response from the public, it should have been the tip-off to U.S. publishers: Americans are nostalgia-starved and enjoy reliving vicariously more homely times, if only through the printed page.

Book Review

Those who grew up in an America that bears no resemblance to the U.S. of today, like to be reminded of more naive times when small pleasures and family life were appreciated and treasured; reminded, too, of the inspiring books read in youth about the pioneering spirit of the West, which helped establish strong character and solid values.

Big Sur writer Jack Curtis knew this, and set out to write a Christmas story, "Christmas in Calico," that is as American as the apple pie he and his wife LaVonn named their ranch for. But when it came time to sell the manuscript to a publisher, Curtis met with no success, despite faith in his novel by such literary persons as Sylvia Burack, editor of "The Writer" magazine, and his literary agent, Cassandra Leoncini.

No writing novice, Curtis had previously published 16 other novels, many of them westerns, as well as eight books of poetry. Still, publishers showed no interest in Calico; so with unwavering faith in his latest offspring, Curtis contacted Don Eddy of Monterey Publishing. Eddy liked it immediately, and termed it the Christmas book Americans had been waiting for. He reasoned that if Dickens' "Christmas Carol" continues to capture the minds and hearts of each new generation of Americans, surely Curtis' "Christmas in Calico" could do the same.

"Calico is a homemade, grassroots American classic," Eddy decided, and set out to help Curtis self-publish it.

Although only recently released, Curtis says the book is moving well "because it is a Christmas book without scandal or corruption. It's like a simple gift to readers of all ages, and is meant to bring together the young and the old, and especially the lonely, at Christmas time."

The story is about a demoralized western Nevada town whose spirit is restored by four very different women who come together to face and conquer the rigors of frontier life. By the book's final chapter the town is in harmony and a Christmas baby is delivered.

The book is well written and the characters finely drawn. A gentle humor pervades the pages and the dialogue flows naturally. Curtis' style is deceptively simple; it comes from knowing what to leave out — the hallmark of a seasoned writer at ease with himself and his storytelling craft. For many years he turned out successful western novels, many short stories, and books of poetry before turning to television writing, scripting a number of well-received western series for some 12 years.

Although Curtis has been nominated for the Editor's Book Award, an Emmy for one of his screenplays, and has received various prizes for poetry and short stories, he says of "Christmas in Calico," "Calico is my best, and I want every American man, woman and child to have a copy for Christmas."

To this end, he finds himself away from Big Sur Apple Pie Ranch more often than not these days, promoting the Christmas book at numerous book signings.

Christmas in Calico may be ordered at local bookstores or from Monterey Publishing, P.O. Box 1924, Monterey, CA 93940.

Make pilgrimage to this miracle play

By JAMES P. KINNEY

THE MIRACLE Play/Christmas Pageant "La Virgen del Tepeyac" opened at Old Mission San Juan Bautista with a riveting display of bright costumes, soaring music, intense drama and thundering dance. What a remarkable production!

Adapted by Luis Valdez, founder of El Teatro Campesino, "La Virgen" is drawn from traditional, centuries-old Mexican folk drama about four apparitions by the Blessed Virgin in 1521 to Juan Diego, a humble Indio recently converted to Christianity.

Theater Review

This year marks the 25th anniversary of El Teatro Campesino. Newly headquartered in San Juan in 1971, the group began to experiment with productions involving music, dance and theater. Founded during the Great Grape Strike in 1965 in Delano, the group created and performed short "actos" (skits) to dramatize the plight of poor farm workers being organized by Cesar Chavez and his team of Chicano labor organizers into what would become the United Farm Workers.

Valdez and his actors performed mostly on the back of flatbed trucks then. Many locals, including this writer, traveled and enjoyed some of their pioneer work.

The current show is performed entirely in Spanish. However, because of a clear scene-by-scene English synopsis in the program, the action is quite easy to follow. The ensemble, vividly dressed in Aztec costumes, conventional period Indio dress and clerical garb, are heard first in the back of the mission, singing the traditional "Paloma Blanca" (White Dove) to celebrate the apparition of La Virgen Maria and to greet the evening's audience.

Then, moving down to a prominently raised stage on the mission's main aisle, the people sing and dance "Estrella del Oriente" (Star of the East), saluting the four directions of the earth. The dancing, by men and women dressed in stunning, wildly feathered headdress and sculpted costumes, is dynamic, almost overwhelming.

During the rest of the well-known story, under director Kinan Valdez' guidance, the large cast recreates more than 90 spellbinding minutes the story of Our Lady of Guadalupe in wonderful solo and choral music, dynamic dance and brisk, dramatic scenes. As expected, the ensemble spirit is evident here in superb discipline, teamwork and warm, empathetic excitement.

A few performances stand out. Olgalydia Urbano brings poise, sweetness, beauty and a remarkably clear voice to the part of the Virgen. Her performance is, indeed, heavenly. Anahuac Valdez' Juan Diego is transparently fresh, humble and appealing; his singing also wonderful; their music together breathtaking.

Edgar Sanchez brings dignity and wisdom to the complex role of The Bishop. Seth Milkwood's bullying "Fray de Gante" is classic clerical "bad guy" and, like his "Satanas" in last year's "Pastorela," unforgettable.

Lakim Valdez delivers an emphatic "Fray Las Casas," the historical figure remembered as the 16th century "Defender of the Indians." Josh Sanchez was believable as "Fray Motolinia," the missionary famous for tough "wholesale converting." Clementina Pantoja was wonderfully antic as "La Criada," the Bishop's panicky housekeeper. Cesar B. Flores delivered a convincing "Juan Bernardino," the uncle healed by the Virgen's grace.

Not enough can be said about the show's overall direction. Brian and Marianne Steeger, music directors on-stage for most of the time, inspired their large chorus with their singing and instrumental support. Gabriela Fernandez's costume design was, as noted earlier, breathtaking. Choreography by veteran Janet Johns was solid, energetic. My god, those big guys can dance! Leticia Candelaria, last year's "La Pastorela" vocal lead, did wonders energizing her large singing chorus.

What a sweet blessing for us local theatergoers to be able to make the December pilgrimage to San Juan Bautista to enjoy such artistic beauty offered by El Teatro Campesino.

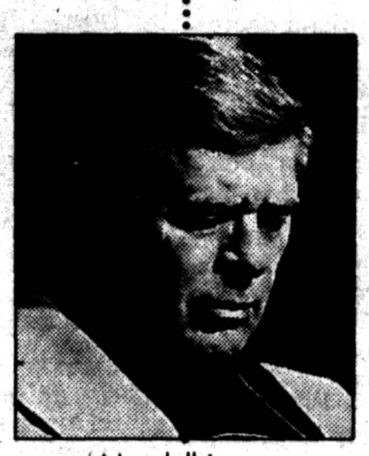
Guitar artists, one a legend, perform Friday in Carmel

TWO OUTSTANDING guitarists, on opposite ends of the spectrum of what today passes as jazz, will perform at opposite sides of Carmel this Friday evening. Traditional jazz guitar legend Mundell Lowe and contemporary acoustic jazz guitarist Peter White will appear simultaneously and respectively at the Jazz Store and the Mission Ranch.

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

At the Jazz Store, located at the Crossroads Shopping Center, Lowe's Friday night appearance (7:30 p.m. start time) is another major coup for booker Alan Schultz. One of the last living giants of jazz, Lowe recorded his first album, Guitar Moods, in 1950 and kicked off a career as both a performer and as a musical director/conductor in film and television. Recognized as one of the premier jazz guitarists of all time, Lowe developed his unique laid-back instrumental style playing with the likes of Billie Holiday, Lester Young, Charlie Parker and Charles Mingus. A former musical director for the Monterey Jazz Festival, Lowe has recorded with Sarah Vaughn, Ray Brown, Carmen McRae and Andre Previn.



Mundell Lowe

Said music critic Peter Waltrous, "Mr. Lowe is one of the best mainstream jazz guitarists, a musician completely at ease with be-bop's snakelike rhythms..." Performing with Mr. Lowe on Friday evening are bassist Scott Steed and drummer Mike McKinley. Admission is $20 per person for both sets ($10 for 18 and under). For more information, call 624-6432.

Also in store for jazz buffs this month at the Carmel Jazz Store: cool jazz pianist Jessica Williams with Patty Waters on Saturday, Dec. 7; the progressive post-bop jazz quintet the San Francisco Nighthawks featuring drummer Eddie Marshall, bassist Rob Fisher, pianist Paul Nagel, guitarist George Cotsirilos and Michael McMullen on tenor sax on Saturday, Dec. 14. All shows begin at 7:30 p.m.

At the Mission Ranch, a special Christmas concert (two shows at 6 and 8:30 p.m.) promoted by Jazz Trax, will feature English-born acoustic guitarist Peter White and his quartet. Since launching his solo career in 1990 with the breakthrough album, reveillez-vous, White has become a mainstay on the relatively new radio format known today as "smooth jazz." The former sideman for English pop singer Al Stewart ("Year of the Cat"), White never envisioned a market for the type of instrumental pop that he composed during his off hours. Said White in his recent bio, "I was completely enamored by the instrumental music of the '60s, like The Shadows, who were big in England, but later all the popular acoustic guitarists, from Larry Carlton to Earl Klugh, who had big jazz backgrounds. My question was, was it possible to play instrumental music coming from a strictly pop background?"

The sideman for both Stewart and vocalist Basia answered his own question with the successive release of reveillez-vous, Excusez-Moi, Promenade and Reflections, four acoustic guitar albums that helped reset the statistical boundaries of airplay charts, in turn helping create the new "smooth jazz" radio format. His just-released Columbia debut, Caravan of Dreams, features appearances by other contemporary jazz artists, Rick Braun and saxophonist Boney James. For ticket information to Friday evening's concerts, call Jazz Trax at (800) 866-8729.

The Safari Club Jazz Jam, which takes place every other Sunday afternoon at the Monterey Bay Hotel on Munras Avenue, will close out the year this Sunday in style with an extravaganza featuring an all-star cast of local jazz musicians. According to music host and jazz singer Lee Durley, the biweekly jam session has secured a corporate sponsor (Acecad) and the future looks bright. Music starts at 2 p.m. and continues "until the last note is played." There is no cover charge. Some of the musicians scheduled to perform at this week's blow-out are flutist Tim Jackson, sax men John Cortes and Roger Eddy, pianists Bob Phillips and Ace Hill, bassist Paul Henderson, drummers Jim LePine and Anthony King, singers Neil Banks and Richard Bryant and many, many more.

The blues have lost or are losing a few local venues (Tyler Street and the Brasstree Lounge), but the genre is doing just fine firmly entrenched now at Doc's Nightclub four nights a week: Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Upcoming weekend shows worthy of note include: the return of the reigning king of San Francisco Bay Area blues, guitarist Tommy Castro on Friday; one of the nation's hardest working blues bands, the Dynatones on Saturday; perhaps the local blues booking of the year ... Fabulous Thunderbird harmonica player and frontman Kim Wilson with young blues guitar wiz Rusty Zinn on Friday, Dec. 13; and another San Francisco blues guitar hero and multi BAMMIE award winner Ron Thompson and band on Saturday, Dec. 14. For tickets and information, call Doc's at 649-4241.

Now that the holiday season has officially begun, it is safe to announce the impending release of a CD from a favorite local caroling group, the Carmel Caroling Company. Performing together for 14 years, CCC is a slick, professional a cappella sextet that performs in Dickens era garb performing a wide variety of Christmas songs both old and new. A family project comprised of one mom, Alice Hofer, her three daughters (Lori, Carrie and Holly) and two friends (Tim Culbertson and Larry Boughton), the Carmel Caroling Company is currently awaiting shipment of their first recording project entitled "Christmas in Carmel with the Carmel Caroling Company."

Recorded live and digitally at the Soledad Mission and produced by the aforementioned Culbertson, the album is a collection of Christmas favorites and will soon be available at local stores and at the group's annual holiday performances. The group can be heard at shopping centers and hotels throughout Monterey County. For bookings and more information, call 649-0521.

Stephen L. Vagnini is a self-described music activist who resides in Marina. For more than 15 years Vagnini has promoted concerts, managed bands and covered the local music beat.

Classical Concert in Review

Ensemble Monterey displays high competency

DECEMBER is the month of multiple choral concerts. In a nice digression from that tradition, members of Ensemble Monterey presented a delightfully varied and well performed program of instrumental chamber music. To open the 1996-97 season of the newly established Lovejoy Concert Series at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula, violinist David Dally, clarinetist Jane Knight, cellist Margie Dally and pianist Melinda Coffey (all of whom are recognized area professionals) played one sonata, two trios and a quartet.

By NATHALIE PLOTKIN

The works played Sunday afternoon sampled literature that illustrated the talent and flexibility of the four musicians involved. Since Ensemble Monterey's purpose is to bring to life less familiar masterworks of the chamber repertoire, they certainly achieved their goal.

Beginning with the Brahms "Sonata in A Major for Violin and Piano" Op. 100, David Dally and Melinda Coffey were generally lyrical, sympathetic protagonists. Though hard put at times to keep his part alive above a piano whose tone tended at times to be overpowering, Dally projected a well-rounded romantic understanding of phrasing and mood particularly in the tranquil sections of the second movement.

Going on to the "Trio in B Flat for Clarinet, Cello and Piano" Op. 11 by Beethoven, Jane Knight, Margie Dally and Melinda Coffey delivered a joyous performance which illuminated the spontaneity and charm built into the work. Beethoven had no pretensions about being deeply serious and profound and neither did the players.

Coffey was at her virtuoso best, delivering sparkling scales and lightly tripping arpeggios and other such pianistic embroideries. Knight's utterances were bright and infectious rhythmically, and Dally's large warm cello tone added depth and substance to the ensemble, particularly in her fine melodic solos in the "Adagio." A set of variations on a playful theme made up an utterly delightful conclusion to the Trio and here there was an extravagant display of virtuoso flights by the pianist. The cello and clarinet chased each other, showing off their abilities and, altogether, the effect was totally captivating and amusing.

Four sections of Olivier Messiaens' "Quartet for the End of Time" brought all four musicians together for the major serious effort of the afternoon. Messiaen wrote the score for clarinet, piano, violin and a cello (with a missing string) because these were the instruments available to him while composing in a World War II prison camp. After informative oral program notes, the players proceeded to traverse the difficult, eerie, moody music. The first three sections explored unusual instrumental nuances. The third part is an extended, internally concentrated clarinet solo which is a distinct test of the musician and Ms. Knight was impressive in her control of the dynamic demands of her music. The fourth section, an Intermezzo, offered some relief and lightening of mood for all the players who displayed high competency throughout the undertaking.

The Mozart "Trio for Clarinet, Viola and Piano" K. 498 gave David Dally an opportunity to display his strong affinity for the viola. When called on to carry a melody, his tone and lyrical smoothness were admirable. The playing was mellow and classically clear. Knight's bright tone and songful melodiousness was very pleasing. Coffey was an agile protagonist as well. Except for the times when the strong piano and clarinet tone effectively negated the violist's efforts, all was enjoyable.

I think there are acoustical problems in the auditorium which bear looking into in order to get a more satisfactory tonal balance between the piano and the upper strings. It could well be that a different room arrangement would solve the problem.

Nathalie Plotkin, music critic for The Pine Cone since 1987, is a graduate of Queen's College with a B.A. in music education and received an M.A. from the Claremont Graduate School in music history. She has taught and performed on the piano, viola and recorder. She has participated in the Monterey County Symphony, many string quartets and early music groups.

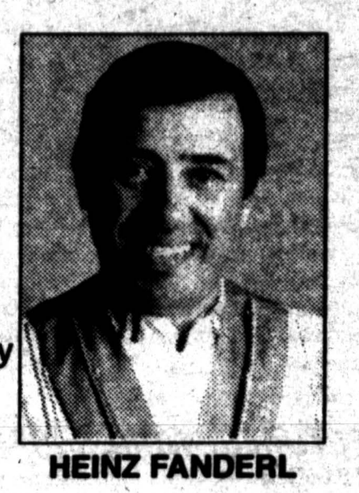
The Whaler



HEINZ FANDERL

If longevity is any measure of success, then The Whaler is a certified hit. This downtown Monterey restaurant has been open 31 years, its devoted followers savoring a menu that has changed little. Why fiddle with success?

Chef/Owner Heinz Fanderl produces a mouthwatering selection of steaks, scampis, prime rib, charbroiled seafood and sumptuous desserts. On the lighter side are palate-pleasing pastas, served with choices of chicken or scampi. You won't leave disappointed.

Because the dining room is large, seating 95, it can be reserved for a special luncheon or dinner. The Whaler also boasts a full bar for your enjoyment.

The Whaler, located at 635 Cass St., is open for lunch Tuesday through Friday and for dinner Tuesday through Saturday.

For reservations, call 373-2814.

Willie Nelson knocks 'em dead at Lifesavers

Social Spotlight

By Dodie Barkley

WILLIE NELSON is the best lifesaver who ever hit town. His mere presence at the Lifesavers for Youth gala on Nov. 23 stirred excitement in an audience packed with his fans.

More than 600 people jammed the huge ballroom at Monterey's Hyatt, and masters of ceremony Alan Richmond and Dina Ruiz Eastwood wisely cautioned everyone not to get up and dance when Nelson appears.

Richmond urged fans to come and sit quietly on the dance floor if they wanted to see Nelson up close. Many did, and the excitement only increased.

The live auction was another success story. One item had a $10,000 tag, and the bidding was fast and furious — an incredible outpouring of love and generosity, all caused by the appearance of a huge star.

I don't know how gals and guys like founder Vel Garrihy, Jane Consani, Phil and Joy Murray, Pat Yates, Bill Stahl and their committee members can be thanked for coming up with such a fabulous show each year, and Jean Hurd is sheer magic at locating items for auction.

Special thanks should be given to Nelson's ex-wife Connie and singer Rita Coolidge. Their show biz connections secured plenty of talent. Nelson's two daughters, Paula and Amy, who did a brief stint before their father, also deserve thanks.

The show was electrifying because most of the people who bought tickets were Nelson fans who knew every word of every song. Dina Ruiz Eastwood, looking beautifully enceinte, announced his name, and Nelson, quite unpretentiously, appeared on stage, sang a song, and the fans came unglued.

Many other people in Monterey should be thanked: Will Bullas, who donated a painting of Clint Eastwood for the silent auction and a painting of Nelson for the live auction. Nelson signed the painting and the successful bidder had his picture taken with Nelson.

Myles and Rhonda Williams donated an exotic week for two in the Fiji Islands. Alain Sarfatti donated several vacation getaways and KSBW TV-8 was media sponsor of the event.

Lifesavers for Youth battles teen-age suicide.

According to its program, "The American Association of Suicidology states that suicide rates for teen-agers have tripled since the 1950s. Every year 6,000 youngsters succeed at it, and experts say 40 percent to 50 percent of kids have seriously thought about attempting suicide."

The above is why every dime that Lifesavers makes at this annual gala goes to suicide prevention programs in Monterey schools.

Mike Little, west coast manager of 'House Beautiful', Quail Lodge owner Ed Haber and Kitty Mountain, associate publisher/marketing director of the magazine in New York, pose at the lake at Quail Lodge during the Carmel Garden Club luncheon.

■ Carmel Garden Club plans one big show

High fashion magazines would call this drop-dead gorgeous, and I'd have to agree. You cannot enter The Covey at Quail Lodge and not be moved by its sheer elegance.

It was a perfect choice for Perennial Productions, which produces the Carmel Garden Show, to launch the May 1997 edition of the show to the press at a luncheon Wednesday, Nov. 20 and to introduce them to the sponsors — House Beautiful magazine.

For four days, May 8-11, 1997, the Carmel Garden Show will present a collection of nationally acclaimed talents who will design gardens with themes like garden reflections, the designer's personal style, interior design concepts and uncommon ways water can be incorporated into the garden.

More than 15,000 people are expected to attend the event at the Quail Lodge host site.

Mike Little, west coast manager of House Beautiful, and Kitty Mountain, associate publisher/marketing director of the magazine in New York, welcomed the media and spoke of their excitement at sponsoring the show at the prestigious Quail Lodge. Little ended saying, "I can't think of a better place to be."

It was nice to see Tom and Margaret Oliver again. Perennial Productions personnel told me that they are hoping that Tom will become a board member.

After gazing at the gorgeous fauna in and around Quail Lodge, I can see how the garden show will probably be one of the most beautiful of its kind.

Recipients of the Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts award, Monterey County Supervisors pose with Cultural Council for Monterey County board president George Williams. They are, from left: Williams, Sam Karas, Edith Johnsen, Judy Pennycook, Simon Salinas and Tom Perkins.

■ Cultural Council for Monterey County salutes benefactors

It wasn't just the well-deserved recognition bestowed upon the Monterey County Board of Supervisors by the Cultural Council for Monterey County that surprised everyone.

It was also the fact that, for the first time in its history, that august body came resplendent in tuxedos and gowns. The event was the sixth annual Distinguished Benefactors of the Arts Awards dinner Saturday evening, Nov. 23 at the Monterey Plaza Hotel.

The awards to the board members by the Cultural Council were for their outstanding support of the arts in 1996. Representatives of the arts and other community organizations were asked to submit names of people who go beyond the call of duty to promote the arts in Monterey County, and the Board of Supervisors came up winners.

Supervisors Judy Pennycook, Sam Karas, Tom Perkins, Simon Salinas and

Chairperson Edith Johnsen received a trophy for their efforts. Other persons receiving arts awards presented to them by Cultural Council Board President George Williams were Congressman Sam Farr, Assemblyman Bruce McPherson, Ilene Tuttle and Mary and Lloyd Morain.

The evening was a splendid mixture of friendship and purpose. Prior to dinner and entertainment by the Scott and Peggy Brown Band, 11-year-old cellist David Reguiro played selections from "Swan Lake," accompanied by Janet Weinstein on the piano. Elaine Berman remarked that it reminded her of her son Stewart, who played with the Boston Youth Symphony.

Event chairperson Amy Funt welcomed guests before turning the microphone over to media personality Sam Van Zandt of Radio KSFC in San Francisco, who regaled the crowd with jokes and anecdotes about San Francisco.

Zandt then introduced Barry Hessenius, CEO of the California Assembly of Local Art Agencies, who gave the keynote speech.

Hessenius remarked that California's funding of the arts annually is $13.9 million, out of an entire state budget of $60 billion.

"That's about one-half of one-10th of 1 percent," he said. He added that Minnesota allocates $24 million to the arts, and, per capita, California ranks near the bottom.

Hessenius proposed an 18-month effort to triple legislative funding to the arts in 1998-99 by building an infrastructure, forming coalitions and alliances with educators, school boards, teachers, unions, PTAs and students. He ended saying, "We need to join chambers of commerce, meet with businessmen, bankers, industry leaders and professional groups. We need to learn the art of the lobbying effort."

The speech by Hessenius came on the heels of a comment made by Cultural Council President Williams.

"At a time when public support for the arts dwindles across America, we in Monterey County have forthrightly pursued a policy of making the arts a cherished centerpiece in the life of every community."

The Cultural Council is a private, not-for-profit organization promoting education, appreciation and excellence in the arts in Monterey County.

Alan Brenner and Laura and Charles Schimmel showed for the Cultural Council Benefactors of the Arts gala Nov. 23 at the Monterey Plaza Hotel.

Lake Tahoe property rights case goes to high court

OVER THE LAST 15 years, Western states have been the incubator for almost every major property rights case that has found itself on the docket of the U.S. Supreme Court.

California Trends

By Bradley Inman

Three important cases emanated from California, one from Oregon and the latest is a development and land-use controversy from Lake Tahoe, Nev., which will be argued before the high court early in 1997.

In the case of Suitum v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, the justices will consider whether homeowner Bernadine Suitum's property rights were trampled on by an arcane set of land-use rules aimed at preserving the Lake Tahoe basin from rampant growth.

The case will be decided after applying a complicated set of legal precedents to the peculiar details of one homeowner's desire to build a modest home in the popular ski town of Incline Village.

But in the end, the court's ruling will turn on 12 words in the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution: "Nor shall private property be taken in public use, without just compensation."

Suitum and her husband, who has since deceased, bought a vacant lot in Incline Village in 1972. It wasn't until 1989 that Bernadine Suitum applied for a building permit with the Tahoe Planning Agency, which regulates growth in the fragile environmental area.

Environmental damage

The regional agency denied her permit on the grounds that the lot is located in a "stream environment zone" and that building there would do damage to the environment.

However, she was granted transfer development rights (TDR), which is an esoteric land-use program that permits landowners who aren't permitted to build to sell their non-existent development rights to someone else who buys them to build elsewhere in locations where building is less constrained.

TDRs have become a popular urban planning tool for shifting development to certain areas while compensating landowners who cannot build in sensitive environmental zones.

In the early 1990s, Suitum filed a lawsuit charging that the planning agency violated her civil rights by "taking" her property for public benefit without paying her compensation.

Bradley Inman, whose syndicated column appears weekly in The Carmel Pine Cone and Monterey Times, has an Internet home page at http://www.inman.com.

In the case of Suitum v. Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, the justices will consider whether homeowner Bernadine Suitum's property rights were trampled on by an arcane set of land-use rules aimed at preserving the Lake Tahoe basin from rampant growth.

"Suitum is being given the royal bureaucratic runaround by the Lake Tahoe Regional Planning Agency," said attorney Victor J. Wolski, who is representing Suitum and works for Pacific Legal Foundation, Sacramento.

So far, the lower courts have seen the case differently.

Both the Federal District Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled for the planning agency, pointing out that Suitum didn't attempt to sell her development rights, and, therefore, couldn't blame the regional planning agency for not compensating her.

Suitum and her lawyers hope to capitalize on the 10-year legacy of the U.S. Supreme Court's conservative approach to building regulations and property rights and its general suspicions of local regulations that arbitrarily extract public benefits from small property owners.

Previous high court rulings

In the 1991 Lucas v. South Carolina Coastal Council case, the justices said that developer David Lucas deserved government compensation for a state beach front law that rendered his property useless.

In the U.S. Supreme Court case of Dolan v. City of Tigard, Ore. in 1995, the high court found unconstitutional the City of Tigard's requirement that businesswoman Florence Dolan dedicate land for a bike path before she could get permission to rebuild her plumbing supply store.

And in the case of Ehrlich v. City of Culver City in 1995, the Supreme Court sent back to a lower court for reexamination a requirement that developer Richard Ehrlich pay $313,220 to the city in exchange for permission to build a condominium project.

SAYING NO TO GROWTH

Monterey County not alone in its quest to curb sprawl; SF developer scratches ballyhooed Mission Bay project

By BRADLEY INMAN

IN THE EARLY 1980s, when planning for the massive Mission Bay project in San Francisco and the Playa Vista development in Los Angeles first began, everyone expected the much ballyhooed projects to take years to build. But no one would have imagined that 16 years later, hardly a space of dirt would be turned on these high-profile mixed-use real estate deals.

Financial woes, community problems and government regulations explain the delays in the two projects, which together promise more than 20,000 new units of housing in a state starved for more homes.

Their tortured history raises the perennial question faced by California for three decades, "How do we grow?" As the state's economy heats up and more housing, commercial buildings and industrial parks are needed, is it a good idea to try to meet those needs by only permitting building inside existing urban limit lines?

For years, environmentalists have been harping that California should retreat from its sprawling ways and grow inward by redeveloping tired old urban areas.

And on paper, no two projects were seemingly better suited to accommodate such a policy than Mission Bay and Playa Vista.

City's best features

Mission Bay is a 300-acre property touching the booming waterfront in San Francisco's south of Market district, where a burgeoning high-tech, multimedia economic explosion is occurring. The project promises 8,000 homes, office space and an entertainment district all integrated into a new San Francisco neighborhood, which would emulate the best features of the city.

But earlier this year, San Francisco-based developer Catellus Corp. scratched the ambitious plan and went

The fees were to pay for replacing recreational facilities that would be lost when the developer tore down a fitness center where the condos were planned. The money also was earmarked for purchasing art to be put in public places around the community.

"After 50 years of relative quiet," the Supreme Court has jumped into the issue with a series of important decisions, according to attorney and land-use expert Jerold S. Kayden, who teaches property rights law at Harvard University's Graduate School of Design.

Property rights advocates argue that they are only getting back what local, state and federal regulations have taken away from them.

Let's Talk Real Estate

with Pat & Bill O'Rielly

TO BARGAIN OR NOT TO BARGAIN

You found a house that seems perfect and you really love it — the chemistry is there — and the price is right. If you are like many buyers, you start off by asking the Realtor if the sellers will take less than they are asking.

A realtor doesn't know what the sellers bottom price is. The sellers often don't know themselves until they get an offer. In many cases, the price is negotiable, but the only way to test it is to make the sellers a written offer to accept or counter. Attractive, well-priced homes usually sell quickly in any market. If you get involved in offers and counter offers, another buyer could come in with a better offer while you are negotiating back and forth. If you cannot qualify for financing at the asking price and you are willing to risk losing the house, you can make a lower offer. But if it will break your heart to lose a home you really love that you can afford — it may be worth paying the asking price.

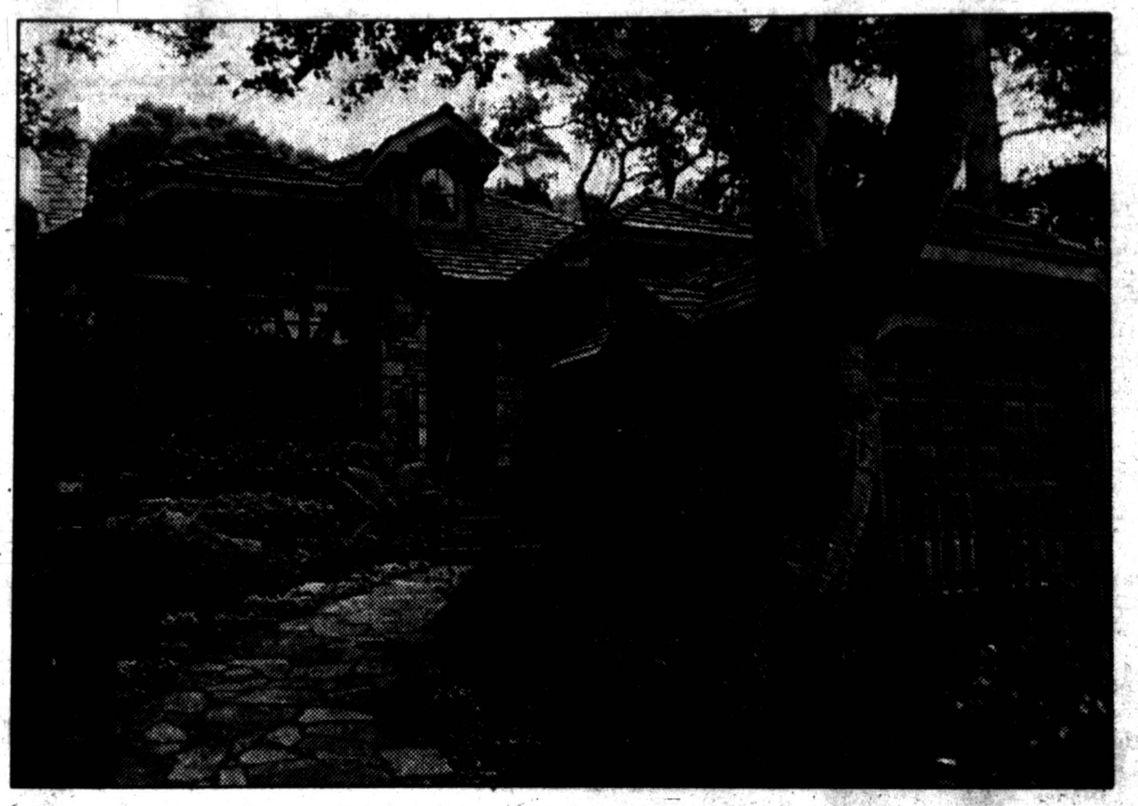
HOUSE OF THE WEEK



The inside of this 'South of Ocean Avenue' home is filled with surprises and charm. It's sweet enough for a weekend getaway, but large enough for a full-time residence.

NEWLY LISTED and named "The Little Wooden House," this five-year-old home is located in the heart of downtown Carmel's coveted "South of Ocean Avenue" area.

Built by a local contractor, the first thing you'll notice is the great curb appeal — from the rock walkway to the colorful landscape and lovely oak tree.

The inside is filled with arched doorways, hardwood floors, bull-nosed corners, fancy country kitchen, formal dining room and roomy master suite.

An easy walk to town or Carmel Beach, the home has two bedrooms and two bathrooms.

back to the drawing board. According to company officials, the mixed-use plan that took 10 years of community meetings, survived two ballot measures and won numerous planning awards wasn't economical.

Community resistance

Over the years, the project has faced tough community resistance, stubborn bureaucratic rules relating to toxic and water pollution and a skeptical real estate market. At different times in the project's history, questions have been raised among real estate experts about Catellus' ability to pull off the massive project.

Today, the only viable use of the site is a golf driving range.

Last month, the company further retreated on any progress when it announced that it would delay construction on 70 prime acres of the plan for the next two decades. Catellus went to the San Francisco planning commission in late November, asking permission to lease these prime parcels for 20 years.

Playa Vista has had a similar up-and-down fate since Howard Hughes first bought the land adjacent to the Los Angeles Airport more than 40 years ago.

In the end, no one seems to want growth.

A derivative company of the Hughes estate, Summa Corp., spent millions of dollars planning for a $8 billion mixed-used project that promised more than 13,000 housing units.

Community issues, such as traffic, have plagued the project since its inception. Its proximity to the upscale Westside and Santa Monica have always made the massive development a controversial civic issue.

Environmental concerns have also been a problem for Playa Vista. Plans have been made to restore the vast marshlands on the site, but many environmentalists still aren't satisfied.

The most recent twist to the 1,087-acre project was a power struggle between developer Robert Maguire III and DreamWorks SKG studios, the new Hollywood film venture owned by Steven Spielberg, Jeffrey Katzenberg and David Geffen. DreamWorks has plans for building a major studio on the Playa site.

Also planned are six million square feet of commercial space and 1,000 hotel rooms.

The stalemate seemingly ended last month when Maguire gave up control of the project so that the development could proceed.

The problems with these projects get at the heart of why the urban infill development strategy cannot be depended on as the sole way of meeting the state's housing needs — they are packed with environmental concerns.

While the constituencies that fight to protect open space wave one flag in the suburbs, another group of urban environmentalists and homeowner associations wave another one in the cities, which centers around wanting less traffic, less density and no more people or buildings.

In the end, no one seems to want growth.

Rare Finds on the Peninsula

The Country Store

Christmas at The Country Store is festive indeed. Cheerful handcrafted ornaments await your selection amidst the fine country furnishings that will bring joy to your home all the year 'round. This shop, situated in downtown Pacific Grove at 618 Lighthouse Ave., gathers hand-hooked rugs by Claire Murray, Hadley pottery, top-grain leather chairs and recliners, solid pine and cherry wood furniture and of course, fabulous down-filled, slip-covered sofas.

It's the source for a special holiday gift to a loved one, or even yourself. The Country Store is open every day. Call 373-8049.

Francesca Victoria

Francesca Victoria is a shop that takes its name from a mother/daughter team. It houses a collection of furniture and accessories, with an accent on French, English and American, all with a California touch, says Frances Clay, owner.

For the garden, you'll find terra cotta pots, wall plaques, iron topiaries and trellises, garden furniture and statuary.

Your home will be further enhanced with pine tables, armoires, iron and glass furnishings, paintings and prints, mirrors and a unique collection of tabletop accessories.

The shop offers special gift wrapping, delivery and shipping. It's located in Carmel's Crossroads, at the very, very end of the boulevard, 250 Crossroads Blvd. 624-4141.

P.G. Business Center

P.G. Business Center is conveniently located in downtown Pacific Grove. This is a UPS/FedEx shipping center, also providing mail boxes and high volume and self-service copying. The staff can pack and ship your packages this busy holiday season.

Gift boxes, cards and gift wrapping papers are available, as well as specialty papers for those Christmas newsletters.

Come in and meet the helpful staff. They include Jeanne Byrne, owner; Al; Sara and Roxanna.

P.G. Business Center can make your holiday shipping and copying easier. It's at 612 Lighthouse Ave. Call 375-2073.

Spa Pacific Associates

Prepare for a party, indulge your holiday-weary self or treat special people on your list (via gift certificates) to the services of Spa Pacific Associates (SPA).

Founded by a senior member of the Ventana Inn Spa Services Staff, this service brings salon-quality spa treatments to the homes of local clients.

They offer a "menu" of treatments from which you may select. These include the body brush and bronzing treatment, perfect for those about to travel to some sunny spot; or "The Triple Treat," combining aromatherapy massage, aromatherapy facial and body brush with aroma wrap.

Spa Pacific Associates suggests booking appointments at least two weeks in advance. Appointment hours are 9:30 to 5:30, with evening appointments available at additional cost. Call 626-0117.
